MORGAN TAX QUIZ BLOCKED

Today

Washington, Hot and Busy.
The Taxi Man's Prayer.
Surprising Texas.
—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WASHINGTON, June 6.

HOT IN this city, hot in the room where the Akron loss is investigated, hot and crowded in the other room where Wall Street is investigated, with Mr. Pecora helping Senator Fletcher, of Florida, to "fathom the unfathomable, and unscrew the inscrutable."

"HOW LONG do you think they will stay?" asks the taxi driver, meaning how long will Congress remain in session, "because," he adds, "when they go, this place is like an empty church."

Told that President Roosevelt plans to keep Congress working until it carries out his plans, the taxi-man says:

"I don't wish him any bad luck, but I hope they hold out a while longer."

IT IS SAID the old-fashioned Mexicans were never in doubt of their ability to beat the United States, but were not quite sure that they could beat Texas. They had had experience with Texans.

Texas, always surprising in its bigness and other things, surprises the world today in the person of Mr. Jimmy Mattern, Texan, former Army flier. Mattern thought he would fly around the world alone, hoped to do it in seven days. He started, no sign of him, the world and its newspapers said:

"Too bad. He's lost in the ocean."

But yesterday, instead of being lost, he was safely landing his red, white and blue monoplane, "Century of Progress," in Moscow. Look that up on your map. And Mr. Mattern, who thinks one Texan is enough, is flying around the world alone.

A NEWSPAPER writer, invited to talk to the Akron investigating committee, yesterday tried to make these points, which are submitted to your judgment:

German engineers and fliers know how to run lighter than air ships safely, efficiently. If Americans do not know, they should learn. We had to learn how to run heavier-than-air planes, in fact we invented them, also how to run many new things—locomotives, submarines, radio, telephone.

THERE ARE two oceans, one of air and one of water. Men use lighter-than-water ships, on surface, why not lighter-than-air ships, in the air?

If engines stop in a heavier-than-air ship, it must come down, on land, or water, or tree-tops. A lighter-than-air ship may stay aloft for days after its engines stop, giving plenty of time for SOS and rescue.

THIS COUNTRY has a monopoly of the helium gas that makes lighter-than-air ships safe from fire or explosion. Its value is proved by England's efforts to find helium gas in Canada and the Dutch East Indies, and Japanese efforts to find it on the island of Saghalien.

If a battleship is destroyed, it takes two or three years to replace it. Germany built Zeppelins in six weeks. Time is important in war, and battleships are out of date.

THE AIRSHIP Macon, just finished, could go to Europe and back without landing or refueling, or cross the Pacific. The Graf Zeppelin crossed the Pacific in 72 hours. The Macon could take passengers, troops or ammunition to Hawaii in 32 hours.

This country is open to attack on its two long coast lines, and needs in war information about planes, dirigibles, surface ships or submarines approaching on the Atlantic or Pacific. Experts have shown that twelve dirigibles on the West Coast, eight on the East, could patrol the oceans, far out, keeping Army and Navy informed by radio.

Twenty lighter-than-air ships, like the Macon, would cost little more than one big battleship, with its tenders, etc., and those 20 dirigibles, carrying inside their hulls 100 fast fighting planes, might easily destroy a whole fleet of fighting surface ships, without sustaining serious loss.

The dirigible would release its swift pursuit planes, as the hawker used to release his hawks, itself remaining at a safe height and distance at first, later approaching to put the finishing, sinking touch, with appropriate bombs.

THE UNITED STATES, because of its wide oceans and long coast lines, east and west, needs dirigibles, lighter than air, as no other nation needs them, except perhaps Japan.

European nations, huddled close together, can get at each other across their trenches and destroy each other with short-flight-radius, heavier-than-air planes.

Mussolini and France can see all of the Mediterranean from heavy planes. Uncle Sam needs lighter-than-air ships, as off-shore watch tower, on both coasts.

They could earn their keep, carrying passengers and mail across the oceans in peace times, changing from passengers and mails to carrying pursuit planes and bombs on short notice.

FROM THE crow's nest on a floating ship's mast the lookout can see ten or fifteen miles. From the "watch-tower dirigible," the officer, with a high-power glass, could sweep a whole section of the ocean.

It is a cheap watch-tower, with the air for its founda-

RACKET OUTFIT IN BOYD SAFE

Inspector of Detectives Frank R. Boyd today opened the doors of his vault and pulled into the light—five adding machines he was accused of returning to a racketeer raided in Mayor John S. Herron's "vice-cleanup."

The inspector firmly ended the myth that he had put Meyer Schwartz back in business at 1213 Penn avenue.

Last night Mayor Herron gave Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide 24 hours in which to report the machines were safe and sound. Herron was apparently annoyed that his clean-up had subsided into a search for allegedly missing adding machines.

To prove his assertions that the machines were still in his possession, Boyd opened the vault and showed the contraptions there with their tapes and figures intact. He said:

"These machines have never left this office from the time they were brought in."

Newspapermen, having kept vigil at the vault through the night, agreed there could have been no "mysterious return."

Detectives today had nothing to do but turn to the Mayor's big vice clean-up and see if they couldn't find a doorman or a numbers writer lurking within reach.

Oppressive Heat Caused by Humidity

Mid-summer weather held sway again in Pittsburgh today. The thermometer held to the 80's, but the humidity was high, making the heat oppressive. The record for this date is 93 in 1925.

Thundershowers are expected, but will have little effect on the temperature, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said.

Negro Juror Breaks 40-Year Record

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 6.—(AP.)—A Negro was accepted for jury service here yesterday for the first time in over 40 years. The first case on which he sat with 11 white men was that of a Negro charged with burglary. A verdict of guilty was returned. The Negro juror was R. C. Hawkins, a retired mail carrier.

WORLD FLIER LANDS IN SIBERIA

Mattern Delays Race Around Globe for Night's Sleep

OMSK, Siberia, June 6.—(AP.)—James Mattern landed here at 1:35 p. m., Moscow time today, (6:35 a. m., Pittsburgh time.)

Mattern thus required 12 hours 21 minutes to fly from Moscow to Omsk, a distance of about 1,400 miles which he negotiated without stopping, averaging almost 120 miles an hour.

Head winds were strong between Moscow and Omsk, slowing up his normal speed, but he knew about them before he left the Soviet capital.

DELAY IN SIBERIA

MOSCOW, June 6.—(AP.)—James Mattern, American round-the-world flier, plans to remain in Omsk until tomorrow, dispatches received here said today.

The flier's plane, the red, white and blue "Century of Progress," was in good order, but Mattern decided that he needed rest.

As soon as he saw that his machine had been properly inspected and taken care of he went to bed, announcing that he would continue the flight tomorrow morning.

Fifty-one hours and 37 minutes after his take-off from New York the smiling Texan arrived here amid a cheering welcome and ate, bathed and snatched two hours of sleep, chafing because necessary plane repairs kept him here nine hours and 17 minutes.

But he was off again in the red-white-and-blue Century of Progress at 1:14 a. m. (5:14 p. m., Monday, E. S. T.), flying over established routes to Omsk, Siberia.

HELD 5-HOUR LEAD

Despite the delay occasioned by the necessity of repairing two tears apparently resulting from ice that formed during the trans-Atlantic leg, Mattern was five hours 15 minutes up on the time established in 1931 by two other intrepid Americans, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty.

Upon his arrival from Oslo, Norway, yesterday, he was told by Soviet officials that over the shorter route he had planned to follow to Alaska via Yakutskhe he would encounter unfavorable conditions, so he decided on the regular air route to Omsk, 1,450 miles east of Moscow.

Told of the anxiety felt for him

Rockne's Son Hurt When Truck Upsets

SOUTH BEND, Ind., June 6.—(INS.)—Knute Rockne, Jr., 15 years old, was nursing a fractured arm today after a truck in which he was riding overturned near St. Joseph, Mich. The son of the late Notre Dame football coach likewise was bruised about the face in the accident.

Engineers Linked in Bribe

County auditors today asserted two county engineers had been given $2,550 by a contractor before they approved final estimates of work done so the contractor could collect on his contract.

M. C. Conick, in charge of the audit of county affairs, in a report to the Commissioners said J. W. Butler, of McKeesport, contractor on the construction of the Mowry-Gilhall and Cochran Mills road, in 1929, had admitted paying $1,000 each to E. A. Griffith, chief county engineer of road construction, and to W. C. Lyle, former assistant to Griffith.

Also, the auditors alleged, Butler said he had paid $550 to Griffith to enable him to buy an automobile.

Butler, according to Auditor Conick, said:

"My investigation convinced me that an organized combination was formed to chastise, break and embarrass me financially by Engineers Griffith and Lyle in conjunction with the director."

The Commissioners ordered the report turned over to District Attorney Andrew T. Park and to County Controller R. G. Woodside.

Commissioner C. M. Barr said:

"I am willing to vote immediately to rescind the action of several weeks ago to pay Butler $10,000 installment of his claim of $35,000 for extras on this contract. It was a dirty trick for him to withhold this information for so long."

According to the report, Butler left two packages of currency each containing $1,000 in Griffith's office after Lyle had told him if he would pay the money the two engineers would approve estimates carrying a payment of $25,000 to Butler.

FOSTER MOTHER FACES ARREST

County detectives today swore out a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Mary McCarthy, Lilac and Highview avenues, West View, alleged to have caused a 3-year-old Juvenile Court ward to be chained because she couldn't say her prayers properly.

Mrs. McCarthy is charged before Alderman T. A. Flanigan with assault and battery and abuse of a minor child.

Harry Carrothers, 34, of 40 Grape street, Knoxville, was arrested today on charges of extortion and attempted blackmail in connection with the alleged mistreatment of his 13-year-old son, a Juvenile Court ward in the home of George Seibert, Baldwin Township. He is alleged to have written letters to Seibert demanding money.

Both Carrothers and Seibert were to receive hearings before Alderman Flanigan late today. Seibert is charged with abusing the Carrothers boy.

U. S. FOURTH OF WAY TO REPEAL

Indiana Goes to Polls After Landslide In Illinois

Associated Press.

The movement for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment was one-quarter of the way toward its goal today with Illinois added to the eight states which previously had voted to strike the amendment from the Constitution. Thirty-six states are needed for repeal.

Today the tenth state—Indiana—made its decision at the polls. The state Legislature liberalized its prohibition laws earlier this year. Voting was light as a bright, hot sun kept farmers in their fields.

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., a leader among prohibition advocates, was quoted as saying before today's voting:

"If we can win in Indiana, we can prevent repeal."

ILLINOIS 4 to 1

The vote in Illinois yesterday was approximately four to one for repeal.

When 5,750 of the state's 7,249 precincts had reported the vote stood:

For repeal	995,804
Against repeal	250,082

The was the third test in the Middle West, Michigan and Wisconsin having blazed the repeal trail. Four eastern states—New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Rhode Island—and two western states—Wyoming and Nevada—have voted for repeal of the amendment. There have been thus far no states to vote for the amendment's retention in the Constitution.

Drys Urge Roosevelt Not to 'Bribe' Voters

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt was urged today by two officials of the International Reform Federation not to respond to suggestions that he make a personal appeal for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The letter, signed by Robert Watson, president, and William Sheafe Chase, superintendent, referred to Postmaster General Farley's activities for repeal, and added:

"There is no law which would subject you to punishment or impeachment, if you should indorse Mr. Farley's threat of an increase of the income taxes unless the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed this year, but we submit to you that for you to make any such threat to the voters would be in violation of the spirit of the corrupt practices act, and against various forms of bribery in elections."

Two Men Die In Bridge Leaps

Two men were killed today in plunges from the Murray Avenue and Sixteenth Street bridges, according to reports made in the same hour to the Coroner's office.

The report said Harry Dubnikoff, 50, of 2332 Shady avenue, was picked up under the Murray Avenue Bridge and taken to Pittsburgh Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

A man, tentatively identified as John Smigelski, of Williams way, leaped from the Sixteenth Street Bridge into the Allegheny River. River Patrolman Charles Snyder recovered the body.

Snyder was checking reports that the man, about 24, had been riding in an automobile with two girls and all were intoxicated.

Man Resembling Turpac Arrested

A man resembling Edward Turpac, Maug gang lifer, escaped from the Western Penitentiary, was held in Taylorsville, Ill., today, awaiting further identification, according to a telegram from Taylorsville's Chief of Police, Ed Zemke. Chief George W. Murren, of County Detectives, said he is sending Zemke records that might aid in final identification.

Is the Morgan Inquiry Being Stifled?

SINCE WHEN must a Senate Committee seek "stipulation" from the House of Morgan as to the extent of revelations which may be made concerning this private banking firm?

Does the power of the House of Morgan still awe Washington?

Does the vast Morgan power and influence, already partially exposed, still bend political leaders to its beck and call?

These questions, the Senate must recognize, are being raised today throughout the United States because of the hesitancy of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency to permit its counsel to expose to the limit the income tax transactions of individual Morgan partners.

The very action of the Senate is certain to arouse suspicion as to the nature of possible revelations.

The House of Morgan, through its counsel, is making a determined fight to prevent the Senate committee from sifting these transactions.

CERTAINLY the excuse of the Morgan counsel that the committee would sit "until the snow flies" if it attempts such an inquiry, is no reason to prevent the investigation.

If there is nothing wrong with the tax transactions, why fear a public inquiry to establish the facts?

The same Senate committee did not hesitate for a moment to bring out into the light the tax transactions of Charles E. Mitchell which produced Federal indictments on the charge of tax evasion.

A rather remarkable decision was made by the Senate sub-committee in secret confab yesterday when it refused for the present to grant its own counsel permission to go ahead with the tax phase of the present inquiry.

The Senate committee endeavored to encourage its counsel AND THE MORGAN COUNSEL to agree upon "stipulations" with respect to the potential revelations of the income tax investigation.

What an amazing performance by the Senators who comprise the Banking and Currency sub-committee.

Only two Senators, the chairman, Senator Fletcher, and the absent Senator Couzens, cast their votes for a wide-open, unlimited investigation. Ten Senators voted for delay in reaching a final decision as to whether or not the present inquiry will go into the taxes of the individual Morgan partners.

NOTHING pleases the Morgan camp more than delay at this moment.

It already has been announced that the Morgan inquiry would be terminated with Tuesday's session.

Does the Senate sub-committee dare to end the inquiry without permitting its counsel publicly to reveal the Morgan partners' tax transactions which have raised such a storm of protest from the Morgan counsel?

For the good of the entire country, for the education of the Senate and the Congress, the Morgan income tax investigation must be pursued to the limit.

Otherwise, there will properly arise nation-wide suspicion that the wand of the House of Morgan can still be successfully waved in the face of the public and that preferential treatment prevails for Morgan partners.

COMMITTEE THWARTS PECORA

Senators Vote Down Move to Scrutinize Income Returns

By EDWIN C. HILL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 6. — Ferdinand Pecora, fighting inquisitor into the operations of the imperial House of Morgan, was this afternoon forbidden by the United States Senate committee on banking and currency to expose alleged income tax evasions by partners of J. P. Morgan.

"For the time being," according to the language of a resolution adopted by the committee, Pecora must confine himself to the railroad promotions of the Van Sweringens.

At some time in the future—it was not stated when—the investigating committee will ask the Senate for enlarged powers permitting Pecora to go into these income tax matters.

LONG DELAY SEEN

Apparently this ends, for the summer, Pecora's determined effort to show how at least three Morgan partners, by means of an

VAN SWERINGEN SLOW WITNESS

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—O. P. Van Sweringen again proved a slow witness, pleading forgetfulness as he did yesterday when the Senate Banking Committee resumed its hearing on J. P. Morgan & Co.'s connection with the vast Van Sweringen railroad empire.

He sat thumbing a pencil, apparently rather bored, as Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, interrogated him.

Senator Barkley (Dem.), of Kentucky, and Fletcher (Dem.), of Florida, were the only committee members in the room.

$1,700,000 LOAN

He referred to an advance by the Vaness Company—a security holding company of the Van Sweringens—to the Nickel Plate Securities Company of $1,700,000 in 1923. Testimony yesterday showed the $1,700,000 was used to buy 3,000 shares of C. & O. stock.

Van Sweringen said:

"The money was paid in reduction of an open account existing between these two companies."

Pecora recalled:

"Yesterday you said it was a loan from the Vaness Company to the Nickel Plate Securities Company."

Van Sweringen repeated:

"The record should have said

Hoarders of Gold Here Hunted by U. S. Sleuths

Hoarders of gold in the Pittsburgh district are being hunted by special agents of the United States Bureau of Investigation. Agents here have received from Attorney General Homer S. Cummings the names of many suspected persons.

Agents are advising persons suspected of having stores of gold currency to deposit it in banks, to comply with President Roosevelt's order that all gold or gold certificates over $100 be returned to the United States Treasury.

The Attorney General forwarded to field officers of the United States Bureau of Investigation the names of 1,000 suspected hoarders. G. A. Stevens, agent in charge of the Pittsburgh office, declined to divulge the number of names on the Pittsburgh list.

There are maximum penalties of $10,000 and 10 years' imprisonment for conviction of gold hoarding.

Apparently the process was for an investigator to call on a gold holder, and to read him the proclamations of President Wilson and President Roosevelt concerning hoarding. The investigator noted the statement of the gold holder in case it was said the gold had been returned. No threat of prosecution seems to have been made.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(INS.)—Signature by President Roosevelt of the Steagall resolution repealing the gold payment clause in all public and private contracts may be the signal for a number of legal actions against the Treasury. Meanwhile federal sleuths began a roundup of more than 1,000 who are hoarding gold in volation of stringent orders.

Some foreign holders of American government obligations in England already have organized and were said to contemplate early action to test the legality of the gold clause resolution.

Lift Morgan 'Lid,' Oust Woodin, Says Senator

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Contending efforts were being made to "hamstring" the Senate's investigation of J. P. Morgan & Co., Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, demanded in the Senate today that the inquiry be allowed to go "full steam ahead and bring out all the rottenness of the international bankers."

He demanded instant dismissal of Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin by President Roosevelt, or his impeachment and removal by Congress.

Robinson charged the investigating committee with "evading responsibility, and asserted:

"Republicans and Democrats alike are on these preferred lists. If there are any guilty ones among them they should go to the penitentiary.

"Morgan the magnificent has had a yacht built and launched during this depression, during the very period in which he paid no income tax.

ROOSEVELT EXPECTED TO COMPROMISE ON VET SLASHES

HOUSE REBELS READY TO VOTE 25% LIMIT

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today signed an executive order fixing new and higher levels of compensation for service connected disabilities of veterans than was originally proposed in the tentative regulations issued under the economy act.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—After an executive meeting of the Democratic Steering Committee, Speaker Rainey told reporters today the House would accept the Connally 25 per cent veterans amendment to the independent offices bill or a substitute proposition to be offered by President Roosevelt.

The House leadership, Rainey said, would delay action on the independent offices appropriation bill to give President Roosevelt enough time to submit his alternative proposal.

Meanwhile, the President speeded up plans for modifying the veterans regulations, calling in Lewis Douglas, the budget director, and Frank T. Hines, the veterans' administrator, for an extended conference on how to make less severe the cuts ordered in former soldiers' allowances.

CUT RESTRICTED

The Connally amendment, adopted by the Senate, provides that allowances for service-connected disabilities shall not be cut more than 25 per cent.

President Roosevelt has served notice that if this increased expenditure is left in the bill additional taxes will have to be levied in order that the budget may be balanced.

Speaker Rainey asserted:

"In the absence of any agreement with President Roosevelt, I am of the opinion the House would adopt the Connally amendment.

"While President Roosevelt has not said he would veto the bill if the Connally amendment as passed by the Senate is approved by the House, I am under the definite impression that he would veto it. However, I have no authority to make the statement."

AGREEMENT NEAR

Rainey said, however, that "the House and the President are not so far apart," and added that within a day or two the President would announce a program relaxing the stringent regulations promulgated under the economy act.

Rainey expressed the opinion that the President's revised program would call for reductions of only 18 per cent in battle casualty cases, but said that Mr. Roosevelt opposed the provisions in the Connally amendment for presumptive cases, men who enlisted after November 11, 1918, and social disease cases.

ADJOURNMENT NOT IN SIGHT

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—Speaker Rainey told newspapermen today that "plans for early adjournment of Congress have all gone blooey" and forecast the special session would not end until July 1. He said:

"Chances for early adjournment have all gone by the board. Anyone who takes a chance on propheysing adjournment stands a chance to lost his reputation as a prophesier."

President Roosevelt has urged Congress to adjourn on June 10, but many members have conceded that it would require until June 17 to finish up.

SUPPORT URGED FOR ECONOMY

Demand that Pennsylvania's Senators and Congressmen support the administration in veterans' compensation reductions had been made today by the Western Pennsylvania branch of the National Economy League.

A membership of 20,317 for the branch is cited in a copy of the letter announced to newspapers from its offices as being sent to lawmakers. The letter is further quoted:

"You are well aware of the fact that the National Economy League is working to see that no injustice is done to veterans whose disabilities have been incurred while in the service of the nation.

"At the same time, any compensation to veterans for non-service connected disabilities is strongly opposed as unfair to the people of the country and demoralizing to a civilized government."

MORTGAGE BILL IN DISPUTE

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—The House today rejected the Senate's amendments and sent to conference the administration's $2,000,000,000 home mortgage bill.

Appointed to represent the House in negotiations to reconcile differences were Chairman Steagall, of the Banking Committee, and Representatives Goldsborough (Dem.), of Maryland, and Luce (Rep.), of Massachusetts.

One of the prime differences is that the House originally voted to limit aid to owners of homes valued at not more than $15,000; the bill passed yesterday by the Senate set a $25,000 limit while President Roosevelt suggested $10,000.

Henry Ford's Taxes Up at Own Request

DEARBORN, Mich., June 6.—(INS.)—A tax expert employed by Henry Ford told the township board yesterday that a certain section of Ford's huge estate assessed at $15,000 should be taxed a total of $54,000. The board complied with the expert's recommendation. The action boosts Ford's township tax rate from $89 to $248.40.

BOULDER DAM UNDER WAY

BOULDER CITY, Nev., June 6.—(INS.)—Signalizing the last phase of one of man's greatest engineering jobs, the first concrete of Boulder Dam will be poured today.

Without special ceremony, but with an array of contractors and reclamation service officials present, the first concrete will be poured from an elevation of 540 feet on one of 230 columns.

It marks the start of a job that will require 27 months, during which a train load of cement will be utilized daily—or the gigantic total of almost 5,000,000 barrels.

Caterpillar Army Halts Freight Train

SUDBURY, Ont., June 6.—(AP.)—A freight train was delayed more than two hours east of Webbwood today because there were so many caterpillars on the tracks the wheels of the locomotive could get no traction.

Ottawa officials have been notified of the menace to trees and gardens from the vast numbers of caterpillars. It is reported that in the back country black flies and mosquitoes are thicker than they have been for 20 years.

INDUSTRY BILL HAS 'TEETH' RESTORED

Senate Yields as to Licensing of Firms

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—Swift Senate passage of the administration's industrial control-public works measure was predicted today by leaders following the Finance Committee's action in restoring authority to the President to license recalcitrant manufacturing establishments.

This power, which had been eliminated from the bill previously by the Senate committee, was restored late yesterday. It is intended to compel concerns that refuse to follow the majority of their industry to fall in line.

MODIFICATIONS MADE

Meanwhile, the formal report by Chairman Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, disclosed today that a modification of the licensing provision was approved to make it effective only if the President "finds that destructive wage or price cutting" is being practised in any geographical area or subdivision of a trade or industry.

The bill, to be taken up by the Senate tomorrow, was further revised to provide that no employe shall be required as a condition to employment to refrain from organizing or assisting a labor organization of his own choosing. The House bill is limited to refraining from "joining" a labor organization of his own choosing.

WAGE CONTROL

Another provision was inserted to "insure the payment of adequate wages on work performed under government contract" by requiring minimum wage rates in the contracts to be "pre-determined by the awarding authorities." The wages so fixed could be revised by the awarding official if changed conditions justified.

To "aid in the redistribution of the overbalance of population," the bill was revised to make available $25,000,000 for loans and "otherwise aiding in the purchase of subsistence homesteads." Repayments would be covered in a revolving fund.

GLASS BATTLES BANK BILL SNAG

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—A final attempt to win an agreement on banking reform legislation was undertaken late today by Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, after a conference with President Roosevelt.

One of the stumbling blocks between the Senate and the House on the Glass-Steagall bill is the amendment of Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), of Michigan, providing immediate insurance of deposits up to $2,500.

The administration is opposed to this and is standing by the original proposal for limited insurance of deposits at the end of one year.

It was believed that Mr. Roosevelt has given warning that if a satisfactory measure could not be worked out immediately, the legislation would go over for the regular session beginning next January.

STATE BEGINS SWEATSHOP PROBE

Mrs. Pinchot Member Of Group Scanning Labor Abuses

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—(AP.)—The eyes of labor leaders are focussed on City Hall today for the opening of public hearings in a legislative inquiry into alleged sweatshop conditions in Pennsylvania.

In a courtroom set aside for the purpose, men, women and children who feel they are working under adverse conditions and for wages too low have been invited to tell their stories to the nine members of the state commission.

Authorized by the Legislature in the dying hours of the recent session, the inquiry is in the hands of three members appointed from the Senate, three from the House and three by Gov. Pinchot.

The Governor's contribution to the committee was the appointment of his wife, Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, who recently joined picket lines in Northhampton and Lehigh counties where child strikers were protesting working conditions; Judge Horace Stern, of Philadelphia, and Clarence J. Moser, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Council, of Allentown.

The other members are Senators G. Mason Owlett, Richard S. Quigley and Bertram G. Frazier and Representatives T. J. Gallagher, sponsor of the resolution creating the commission; Eugene J. Gorman and A. W. Shriner. All of these save Gallagher are Republican organization men. Gallagher is an independent Republican.

REED TAX CASE QUIZ TABLED

WAHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—The McFadden resolution calling for an investigation of income tax adjustments sought by the law firm of which Senator Reed (Rep.) was a member, was tabled yesterday by the House.

Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, has promised to tell the House today "something that anyone can understand" about his resolution calling for an investigation of the bonuses and salary paid Albert Wiggin, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank of New York.

BLOCK MORGAN TAX QUIZ

amazingly clever device, "avoided" payment of income taxes.

Obviously the work of the investigation is drawing to a close for the hot summer months. Congress is tired and wants to go home. Members of the Banking and Currency Committee want to quit until next fall.

Chances are the inquiry will be tucked away in moth balls next Thursday and so it is about 20 to 1 that the income tax subtleties of the Morgan partners will remain a closely guarded secret—guarded by the power of the United States Senate.

It would have been an easy matter for the investigating committee to have gone to the floor of the Senate a week ago—or a month ago—and have secured the necessary authority.

But for some reason it didn't. The income tax affairs of the Morgan partners remained sacrosanct—and so remain up to this hour.

Pecora, of course, burns with resentment. He feels that the committee is blocking its own inquiry.

He senses that hidden and powerful influences are at work to conceal the actual inside operations of J. P. Morgan & Co.—the operations he is seeking to expose by the method of going into income tax matters and the activities of individual partners.

Pecora made little effort to conceal his anger and his scorn and the Morgan group were at no pains to mask their exultation. It was their first real victory and Pecora's first real defeat.

The resolution adopted by the Banking Committee read:

"It is the sense of this committee that it should inquire into the practices of buying and selling securities as such practices may affect the taxing power of the government; but inasmuch as the legal right of the committee to proceed along this line of inquiry is challenged, the committee should proceed immediately with railroad, public utility and other phases of the investigations and the sub-committee charged with the investigation be directed to report a resolution enlarging the powers of the committee as soon as possible, in such manner as may be deemed necessary to enable it to inquire into the above practices."

in reduction of an open account between the companies."

Pecora asked:

"When was the open account created? What were the circumstances?"

Hesitating, Van Sweringen drummed on the table with his fingers. He finally said:

"I don't know."

Pecora then asked a half dozen question about the "open account" and a series of "I don't knows" followed.

Before replying, Van Sweringen, as he did on yesterday, frequently talked with Frank H. Ginn, Cleveland lawyer, and members of his staff.

The committee counsel kept asking about the "open account."

Van Sweringen said:

"The records speak for themselves."

His voice lost some of its mildness. It turned out that the records of the Vaness company were not at the hearing.

Van Sweringen said he was testifying, however, from "a memo furnished me by my associates."

Pecora said:

"You said yesterday that you would tell where the Vaness Company got the $1,700,000."

Van Sweringen said:

"The aVness Company at about that time got a loan from the Guaranty Trust Company of about $3,000,000."

"Then this money for the C. & O. was borrowed money?"

"It was not your own money?"

"It was borrowed."

"Where did the money come from for buying the 73,000 shares of C. & O.?"

CONFERS WITH AIDES

Van Sweringen conferred with his aides and then retold the story of the $1,700,000 of Vaness money.

Pecora said he wanted to know about the entire $7,300,000 used to buy C. & O. stock. Van Sweringen insisted:

"I'm still right. There were two parts, one of $5,600,000 and one of $1,700,000."

Pecora demanded:

"Have you any recollection of furnishing any money out of your means?"

Van Sweringen said:

"We provided the $1,700,000 out of the Vaness Company."

Pecora asked:

"But didn't you just say the $3,000,000 of the Vaness Company was borrowed?"

Van Sweringen insisted:

"But we supplied it just the same. We and our associates put up the collateral."

There was a lengthy exchange after Pecora asked:

"Did you and your associates, Bradley, Nutt and others whom you could not name furnish the $1,700,000 which was turned over to the Nickel Plate Securities Corporation?"

Bradley and Nutt were previously identified as C. L. Bradley and J. R. Nutt, both of Cleveland.

Van Sweringen asked to have the question reread, saying he had answered it previously. Pecora said tartly:

"Kindly pay attention and answer the last questionse I asked."

There was a delay while Van Sweringen asked the stenographer to read the question.

Spectators laughed.

After repetition of the question Van Sweringen said that the money was "out of our means but it was the proceeds of a loan from the Guardian Trust of Cleveland."

Eddie Foy, Junior, Weds Chorus Girl

NEW YORK, June 6.—(INS.)—Eddie Foy, Jr., comedian and son of the late comedian, today married Anna Marie McKenney, who left the chorus of a musical comedy.

Foy's first wife, the comedienne Barbara Newberry, divorced him early in 1932.

'Playboy' Denies Blows At Pittsburgh Heiress

RENO, Nev., June 6.—(INS.)—Eugene A. Bowen, slender, dark-eyed New York broker, sat in his dingy jail cell today and admitted sadly that he "just can't understand it."

His trial on charges of assault and battery against the pretty New York and Pittsburgh social leader, Mrs. Miriam V. Hostetter Young, has been continued until tomorrow.

From his cell, Bowen issued a denial that he "ever struck" Mrs. Young. The affair came as a climax to his visit here when he announced he intended marrying her—only to be met by her denial.

Bowen said he spent "from 8 in the morning until 10:30 at night" in the company of Mrs. Young on Friday, the day before he was arrested charged with assault and battery against her on May 21 and again on May 29.

He admitted that they had quarreled on previous occasions, but said that he "never struck nor never had any reason to strike" Mrs. Young.

Taking a handkerchief from his breast pocket with Mrs. Young's initials on it, he said:

"She came to me at the city jail Sunday morning, and certainly showed no animosity. I can't understand it."

Roosevelt Aide Again 'On Carpet' in Kit Quiz

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—Louis McHenry Howe, President Roosevelt's secretary, told the Senate Military Committee today he never "directly nor indirectly attempted to influence any decision" in the purchase of 200,000 toilet kits from BeVier and Co., Inc., of New York, for reforestation camp workers.

Testifying the second time in the inquiry, the witness was sworn at the request of Senator Carey, (Rep.), of Wyoming.

Howe appeared last week at his own request, saying it was to "clear up" an impression that he had instructed Robert Fechner, director of the conservation program, to buy the kits.

Army officials have testified that in their opinion, the kits—which were ordered at $1.40 each—could be duplicated for from 75 cents to 85 cents apiece.

Senator Duffy, (Dem.), of Wisconsin, obtained permission to recall Maj. Gen. John L. Dewitt, quartermaster general, for questioning about this.

AUTO HUNTED WHERE BAY YIELDED SLAIN WOMEN'S BODIES

EXPECT TO FIND KILLER DEAD AT WHEEL

Police Believe Car May Have Plunged Into Water

Universal Service.

MIAMI, Fla., June 6.—Dumfoundling Bay, which last Thursday gave up the nude and mutilated bodies of Mrs. Myer Shapiro, of Orbisonia, Huntingdon County, Pa., and Mrs. Lillian Howard, of Woodstock, Va., will be dragged, it was learned tonight, for their car.

State's Attorney John Roland said the dragging would be undertaken on the possibility that the women's slayers drove the auto off the shore highway either purposely, to eliminate clues, or accidentally—in which case the unknown killers themselves would probably be found at the wheel.

Simon Wender, nephew of Mrs. Howard, with whom she lived in Woodstock, Va., was in conference with the authorities today. Police had announced they wished to interview Wender about the women's background.

As police reconstruct the crime, both women were well supplied with money when they left the winter home of Mrs. Shapiro here May 14. Mrs. Howard's niece, Violet Howard, of West Palm Beach, was to drive them North, but she telegraphed at the last moment she would be unable to do so.

A man—and police are still seeking to determine his identity—agreed to take the wheel.

On June 1 the crew of a dredge laying a cable across the bay came upon the bodies of the two women, their skulls bashed in, their shoulders joined by a heavy string, from which dangled a small canvas bag.

GAS LINE BLOCK PERILS FLIER

MOSCOW, June 6.—(INS.)—A piece of felt, mysteriously lodged in the gas filter of Jimmy Mattern's airplane, the Century of Progress, came perilously close to wrecking his round-the-world flight attempt before it was half over.

The little piece of felt was discovered only a few hours before Mattern took off from here on his way to Omsk today.

How it ever got into the filter was a mystery.

Mattern made the discovery when he was about to leave Moscow. He started his motor only to find it spluttering and coughing. Hurried investigation brought the obstacle to light. Mattern remarked:

"Phew, I'd have had a nice time if I had hopped off with that.

"That's what almost gave me heart failure twice over the Atlantic when my motor cut out."

2 CHICAGO MEN BACK MATTERN

CHICAGO, June 6.—(INS.)—Hayden R. Mills and H. B. Jameson, two Chicago businessmen, today were disclosed as the financial backers of James Mattern on his solo flight around the world.

Mattern's flight drew the interest of both men, and they instructed the young flier to go the limit in making his preparations, it was revealed by Mills when Mattern reached Moscow. Mills said:

"We feel confident that Jimmie will come through. He started working on plans for another flight within a few days after the crackup he and Bennett Griffin had in Russia."

Jameson relayed to Mills a cablegram he received in New York from Mattern after he had taken off from Moscow. It read:

"Feeling great. Still traveling east. Hope to drop in on you soon. Regards. Jimmie Mattern."

WIDOW HUNTING FLIER TO RACE FOR HER

Wife of Pilot Killed In Crash Seeks 'Sub' To Fly His Ship

RICHMOND, Va., June 6.—(AP)—A powerful racing plane—without a pilot—awaits entrance in the July trans-continental races from Newark to Los Angeles.

Larry Jamieson, Richmond-New York air mail pilot crashed to his death in the line of duty Sunday. He left to his family a bullet-like speed plane, built for the climax of his career in the air—the transcontinental races.

Mrs. Caroline Jamieson, his widow, mother of two little children, holds a transport license, but she doesn't want to fly the ship she watched grow from her husband's dreams. She prefers one of the nation's aces at its controls.

She is looking for a racing pilot with whom to stake its success. She offers to share any prize money, her part to be used in the care of her family.

Larry designed the craft. Its construction was started in 1931. Its high compression Curtiss D-12 engine with 12 cylinders has been developed from its original 450 horsepower to 600. Its landing gear is retractable. Byrd Airport engineers say the plane is capable of more than 340 miles an hour.

EX-JUDGE DIES DURING ROW

SAN PEDRO, Cal., June 6.—(AP.)—Henry L. Arnold, 75, retired judge of the Kansas City Court of Appeals, fell dead today in an argument over a fence.

Arnold, detectives said, accused Mrs. Frances Gardena of building a fence which he claimed was one foot over the property line on a lot belonging to his wife. While the two were arguing, Miss Betty Gardena, 23, came to her mother's side, picked up a lath, the officers said, and struck Arnold on the head with it.

A moment later Arnold slumped lifeless to the ground.

The officers did not hold Miss Gardena.

BATTLE BANDITS ON ALTAR

BOSTON, June 6.—(AP.)—Two policemen and two men alleged to have invaded the Mission Catholic Church in the Roxbury district battled at the foot of the main altar early today.

Finally William Dorsey, 29, was felled in front of the altar and John Robinson, 32, was hauled from under a bench in the sanctuary. Each was charged with breaking and entering and attempted larceny.

An alarm system brought the police and six priests to the church. The Mission Church is one of the most widely known churches in Greater Boston.

MATTERN LANDS IN SIBERIA

on the Atlantic leg of the flight, he said:

"I fooled them, didn't I?"

This part of the flight ended at Jomfruland Island, off the Norwegian coast, at 5:15 a. m., Pittsburgh time, Sunday. He flew to Oslo 16 hours and 45 minutes later, and at 1:40 a. m., Pittsburgh time, he took off for Moscow, arriving here seven hours and 17 minutes later.

Sixty hours and 54 minutes after he left New York he pointed the nose of his plane towards Omsk.

NAPS WHILE FLYING

He disclosed an ingenious arrangement for catching cat naps while in the air, saying:

"I fixed rubber bands to the stick from the compass rack, allowing sufficient margin to provide for a slight drift to the right.

"Then I crossed my legs and with my right foot put a slight pressure on the left rudder, which equalized the drift and kept the plane on an even course.

"That's how I got my cat naps."

Two more long water hops—if he fulfills his plans—remain before him, the Sea of Okhotsk and the Bering Sea, after leaving Khabarovsk.

His main purpose, he said, is to set a globe solo record, but he wants nevertheless to break the record of Post and Gatty of eight days, 15 hours and 51 minutes.

Loses Time Advantage By Stop at Omsk

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—Jimmy Mattern reached Omsk, Siberia, today with a 54 minute lead on the Post-Gatty record up to that point, but lost this advantage when he landed, for the record holders flew over Omsk without stopping.

The lone Texan, who is seeking to wrest the round-the-world flight record from Post and Gatty, was 73 hours and 15 minutes out of Floyd Bennett field when he landed at Omsk.

Up to that point in their history-making flight in 1931, Post and Gatty's elapsed time from Roosevelt field was 74 hours and nine minutes.

Instead of stopping at the Siberian city, Post and Gatty flew on 400 miles to land at Nova-Sibirsk with an elapsed time of 76 hours and 36 minutes. That same day the pair proceeded to Irkutsk, landing with an elapsed time of 91 hours and 59 minutes.

Mattern thus has 18 hours and 44 minutes to catch what rest he needs at Omsk and fly the 1,250 miles to Irkutsk in time to equal the Post-Gatty record to Irkutsk.

3 SEA FLIGHTS START SOON

Associated Press.

While the exploits of the American Jimmy Mattern stirred the world today, Spanish, British and Italian aviators were completing plans for trans-Atlantic flights.

Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar announced they will be ready in two or three days for a projected hop from Seville, Spain, to Havana.

The famous flying Mollisons, Capt. James A. Mollison and his wife, Amy Johnson, will start from London for New York tomorrow, if the weather is good. From New York they plan to fly to Bagdad and thence to England.

In Orbetello, Italy, 100 Italian aviators are tuning up more than a score of planes for a mass flight, by stages, to Chicago, to start in a few days.

MORE RANSOM MONEY FOUND

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 6.—(INS.)—Another arrest was made today in the kidnaping of the city manager's daughter, Miss Mary McElroy, and detectives recovered $1,795 more of the $30,000 ransom. More than half of the money has been recovered.

They took Bernard Ellsworth, 32, into custody at a wrecking company plant which he partly owns. On the premises they found a glass jar covered with cinders and containing the money in crisp new bills.

Ellsworth, held on an open charge, said Clarence Click, one of the ringleaders of the kidnaping gang, gave him $2,200 to hold for his brother, Bill.

Princeton Student Fails, Shoots Self

PRINCETON, N. J., June 6.—(INS.)—Despondent over his second failure in examinations at Princeton University, Charles Maddock III, freshman and son of a well known Trenton family, shot himself in the head last night while the campus reverberated with noise of the "polar recess" celebration. He left a suicide note, police said.

SCOLDED, GIRL CLUBS FATHER

Peter Munnely, 45, suffered a head injury when his daughter, Alice, 17, attacked him with a club and a hatchet during a domestic quarrel in their home, 131 Flowers avenue, Hazelwood, early today, according to a police report.

Another daughter, Elizabeth Munnely, 19, who also participated in the fight, was lodged in Oakland Police Station. They will be arraigned in Morals Court today on disorderly conduct charges.

Police said they were told the argument began when Munnely scolded his daughters for staying out late. When he attempted to strike her, Alice wielded a club and a hatchet, police said.

GIRL SOUGHT IN THREATS

From last midnight to 4 a. m. today a dozen threatening telephone calls disturbed the peace of Norman Johnson, of the Royal Yorke Apartments.

Police said Johnson told them the calls were made by a woman who was a friend before his marriage.

The caller threatened to "blow up" his business if he failed to leave a sum of money at a designated spot.

At the home of the woman the police were told she had been absent all night.

TOWN THWARTS CONVICT RAID

RISON, Ark., June 6.—(AP.)—A band of between five and seven heavily armed men, who Sheriff Roy Morrison said he believed were fleeing Kansas convicts, were thrwarted in an attempt to loot this town today after the early morning kidnaping of the night watchman.

Lights were turned on and an armed guard of citizens patroled the streets after the alarm was given that Deputy Sheriff W. A. Fore, night watchman, and J. R. Perkins and Sam Rogers, a Negro, had been kidnaped by three armed men from in front of Harry Thomasson's merchandise store.

Thomasson, wakened by Perkins and Rodgers who had come to deliver a load of hay from Stuttgart, witnessed the kidnaping of the men when he got up to meet Perkins and heard the gang say they would return to "loot five or six safes."

'BROKE,' SAYS MITCHELL

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank, whose financial position was so strong that he could borrow millions from the Morgans, testified today at his income tax evasion trial that two years later his strong box held only a few worthless odds and ends.

It was Mitchell's second day on the stand. Yesterday he told of his fears for his own bank and the market generally in 1929 and said he borrowed vast sums from J. P. Morgan & Co., in futile efforts to turn the stock market rout into an orderly retreat.

Today he told of giving more and more of his securities to the Morgan firm to keep up the amount of his collateral. His lawyer asked:

"In October, 1931, do you recall whether you had delivered to J. P. Morgan & Co. as collateral all the stocks you had?"

Mitchell replied:

"I wouldn't say all. I still had some odds and ends in my box—stocks that wasn't worth putting up."

Mitchell testified today both as to sales of stock to his wife in 1929 and to W. D Thornton, a copper company executive in 1930, sales by which he avoided income tax payments in both those years, sales which the government charges were shams.

Murder Suspect Ends Life by Rope

SELINSGROVE, Pa., June 6.—(AP.)—A few hours before he was to have gone on trial for murder in the death of a friend, Alvin Boyer, 53, was found hanged today in a shed on his farm. The Coroner said Boyer had committed suicide.

Boyer was charged with killing James W. Stahl last April 25. Hearing a noise near his chicken coop late at night, Boyer had run down through his yard and fired a shotgun.

Mother Denied Writ To Regain Children

A habeas corpus writ, by which Susan Wagner, wife of Julius J. Wagner, Sewickley businessman, sought to obtain custody of three daughters, was denied today by Judge Ambrose B. Reid in Common Pleas Court.

The court based the decision on the ruling of the County Court giving the husband custody. Mrs. Wagner has sued for divorce.

Wife Feared for Life, Tub Death Quiz Told

By RALPH B. JORDAN

International News Service.

SAN JOSE, Cal., June 6.—An indication that Mrs. Allene Thorpe Lamson was in fear of her life was claimed today by Santa Clara County authorities as they delved deeper into the mysterious Stanford campus bathtub death of the beautiful young university matron, whose husband, David A. Lamson, is charged with murder.

While both defense and prosecuton worked to prepare for the Stanford Press executive's preliminary hearing, set for June 15 at his arraignment yesterday, Sheriff W. J. Emig said the idea that Mrs. Lamson feared a violent death was suggested to him by a statement which Lamson's mother, Mrs. A. B. Lamson, made to newspapermen during the arraignment.

This contrasts with the fact that the Lamsons were known as a campus "Romeo and Juliet" couple.

Mrs. Lamson, fondling her 26-months-old granddaughter, Allene Genevieve, said:

"Allene told me twice that if anything happened to her she would depend on me to care for the baby as her own mother is in Missouri."

The young Mrs. Lamson met death Memorial Day in her spacious campus home—her skull crushed—her nude body found in the bathtub—a victim of blows from her husband, the state claims, because of her chilled affections. The defense claims she was the victim of an accident or an unknown slayer.

Son to Pilot First Lady As Flight Resumes

TUCSON, Ariz., June 6.—(INS.)—Elliott Roosevelt late today will become the aerial chauffeur of his mother, the flying First Lady of the Land.

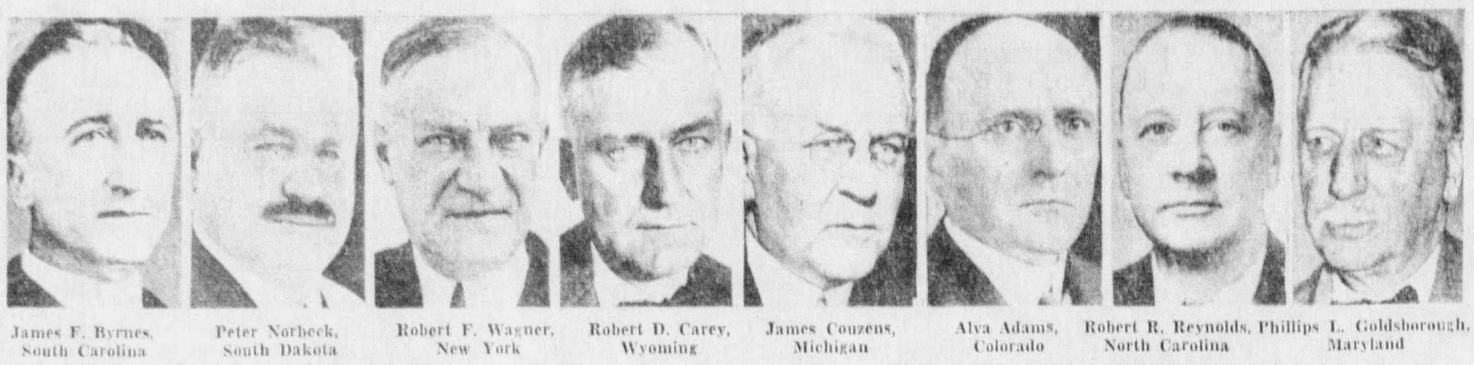
This was revealed as Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, plunged into a day crammed with activity as she paused here on her transcontinental air jaunt, which was made for the express purpose of visiting her son, newly named executive of a Pacific Coast air line.

Elliott Roosevelt, anxious to prove his flying prowess to his mother, plans to pilot her from Tucson to Phoenix, where she will spend a half hour with friends before taking off in an air liner, along with Elliott, for Los Angeles.

Although she talked with her son until long past midnight, Mrs. Roosevelt arose early this morning to face cheerfully as many engagements as if she were in Washington.

Citizens! Do Not Permit a Senate Committee to Block the Inquiry Into the House of Morgan!

William G. McAdoo, California — Robert J. Bulkley, Ohio — John G. Townsend, Jr., Delaware — Thomas P. Gore, Oklahoma — Duncan U. Fletcher, Chairman, Florida — John H. Bankhead, Alabama — Alben W. Barkley, Kentucky — Edward P. Costigan, Colorado — F. C. Walcott, Connecticut — Carter Glass, Virginia — Hamilton Kean, New Jersey



James F. Byrnes, South Carolina — Peter Norbeck, South Dakota — Robert F. Wagner, New York — Robert D. Carey, Wyoming — James Couzens, Michigan — Alva Adams, Colorado — Robert R. Reynolds, North Carolina — Phillips L. Goldsborough, Maryland

Above Are 19 Members of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency. The Full Membership Consists of 20 Senators.

Citizens of the United States:

THE INVESTIGATION of private international bankers and their connections with foreign governments and with your public officials is of vital importance to you and to your government and to purity and honesty in your public life and indeed to the preservation of American institutions.

It is your civic duty to interest yourselves personally in this investigation and to see that all the facts are uncovered which may lead to the improvement of the political and financial conditions in this YOUR country.

It is your duty to try to prevent the surrender of the best interests of your country to advantage foreign peoples and foreign powers.

It is your duty to see that your government is conducted honestly and conscientiously for the public good.

It is your duty to see that certain great financial magnates do not have more influence with your public officials than you have, and also to see that private influences are not exercised in secret and sinister manner to decide elections and determine legislation in ways which are contrary to your wish and your welfare.

YOU SHOULD know how it is that the House of Morgan is the virtual governing body of this country; how it is that Mr. John Pierpont Morgan, a private citizen, possesses more political power than your President.

You now have an opportunity to learn how it is that great international bankers control conventions and nominate candidates in both parties and secure friendly representations in public office no matter which party is elected.

You now have an opportunity to decide whether you shall run your country in your own interests, or whether great international bankers shall run this great country in their interests, or worse, in the interests of those foreign nations with which most of their business as international bankers is done.

Do not allow this unique opportunity to learn facts and to reform conditions to slip by you.

IT MAY be a long time before you have another President who was NOT nominated by the House of Morgan and is NOT controlled by big financial interests.

It may be a long time before you have another chance to investigate and disclose the devious ways of big business to control politics and plunder the public.

It may be a long time before you have such another honest fearless investigating attorney as clever and courageous Ferdinand Pecora.

Citizens of the United States, you know your duty and you realize your opportunity.

It is your business to see that the senatorial investigation continues thoroughly and vigorously and honestly and impartially until the full facts are disclosed.

It is your business to support your fine independent President.

It is your business to back up your able investigating attorney.

It is your business to make your senatorial investigating committee INVESTIGATE and not expostulate, and procrastinate, and prevaricate, and deviate, and duck and dodge, and try to evade their obligation to their country and to YOU, the public.

EVERY LITTLE banker in every senator's home state and home town is telling his senators to "lay off" the great god Morgan.

But after all, the senators are not THEIR senators. They are your senators.

Do your duty to your country and yourselves.

Call up your senators, or telegraph your senators, or write your senators, or send them post cards, and tell your senators to go ahead with the good work of the investigation and bring out all the facts, and do their full duty and not be influenced by the big financial interests, or the little financial interests, or any interests but the best interests of the American people they are hired to represent.

Maybe, citizens of the United States of America, if you do your duty in this emergency the senators will do theirs.

BEER REVENUE AIDS JOBLESS

HARRISBURG, June 6.—(AP.)—One of the state's youngest and lustiest revenue infants—the $1.24-per-barrel tax on beer—already has swelled funds for relief of the jobless by more than $500,000.

In effect only a month, the levy, which amounts to half a cent on each bottle of the brew, produced $556,407 from May 5 to May 31, inclusive, the Department of Revenue announced.

Enacted by the last Legislature, the tax is designed to produce at least $10,000,000 in two years for unemployment relief.

Leon D. Metzger, state Secretary of Revenue, said the size of the first month's receipts—approximately $20,00 a day—was due to the large quantity of beer in the hands of retailers, brewers and bottlers on the day the tax became effective. This stock had to be taxed the same as beer produced after that date, he said.

HARVARD HEAD PENS FAREWELL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 6.—(AP.)—Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell expressed his farewell to Harvard University, of which he has served as president for 24 years, in a letter published in the 1933 Class Album.

He wrote to the class of 1933:

"You go forth into a world weary and distressed, but for that very reason needing sound thinking, broad sympathies and, above all, courage — needing, therefore, the best that is in young men; and Harvard sends you forth equipped for whatever may betide. With hope and confidence I big you good-bye.

CHILD HEALTH LOSS SHOWN

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—The conference of State and Provincial Health Authorities of North America was told today that in at least 15 American states and Canadian provinces there is marked evidence of malnutrition among children.

The report was based on a questionnaire seeking to establish whether the depression had left clear evidence of underfeeding.

Two states reported undernourishment increased in industrial regions, but not on farms.

Infant mortality in American states was shown to have dropped in the 20 years from 124 per 100,000 to 64.

Greensburger Heads Congress Golfers

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—Democrats in the House have chosen Representative Berlin, of Greensburg, for their captain in a golf match with the Republicans, set for tomorrow morning. Representative Snyder, of Uniontown, is chairman of the arrangements committee.

tions, helium gas for elevator power, able to remain on duty for months with a capable, experienced crew.

The nonsense of sending a trained airship commander to do "sea duty" on a floating ship, instead of keeping such a man at what he does best, is idiotic beyond words.

As well compel an air mail pilot to come down at intervals and ride the pony express with mail bags. The President, presumably, will end that folly before ships are needlessly lost.

Continuity of service is essential in airship command study, airship development being in its infancy.

THERE IS talk of "great expense" in connection with dirigible building. That means short memory. Eight to ten millions a year would take care of all costs, and provide the country with a dirigible fleet of greatest value, that might mean billions saved in case of war, or in frightening off war.

This nation in a hurry, when the last war started, spent more than half a billion on airships, made by amateurs, and they would not fly. It spent other hundreds of millions on worthless ships that never went to sea, and could not be given away.

FORESIGHT is desirable, and when you have had the experience that this nation has had, with "dollar a year patriots" and others, neglect of airships, submarine and fast cruiser building would be a crime against the country.

There is no thought of attacking or hurting anybody, only of keeping this country safe from attack or hurt.

If we had twenty lighter-than-air ships, cruising off our East and West coasts, with 100 fast bomb-dropping pursuit planes stowed away inside them, a fleet of invisible submarines accompanying them, and two or three thousand heavier-than-air fighting planes ready to meet the enemy, close in shore, the enemy would stay at home, and that is what we want.

Steel rolling and fabrication continued to mount in Pittsburgh today, with work scheduled to start immediately on sizeable construction jobs at two plants.

Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation will begin construction on a fleet of eight steel barges for the Campbell Transportation Company of Pittsburgh, giving added work-hours to several employes.

With the opening of the eighth mill in the McKeesport district yesterday, 200 men went back to work at the W. Dewees Wood plant of the American Sheet and Tinplate Company.

MILLS RESUME

Fifty men were added to the payroll of the Follansbee Brothers mill at Wheeling yesterday, according to officials who said last week's output was the largest for any similar period in 10 years.

Twelve of the 20 hot mills of the New Castle works of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company have resumed operation for the first time since December 31, 1931.

NAZIS PLEDGE JEWISH RELIEF IN SILESIA

GENEVA, June 6.—(AP.)—A representative of Chancellor Hitler's government pledged his word before a public League of Nations Council meeting today that Germany will give back to Jews the positions they recently lost in German Upper Silesia.

The question of Germany's treatment of the Jews in Upper Silesia was brought before the league council on May 20 when Franz Bernheim, a German Jew, presented a petition charging that the barring of German Jews from professions in that area contravenes a Polish-German convention guaranteeing certain rights regardless of race or religion.

CLASH AT HEARING

Caustic words passed between Friedrich von Keller, German representative, Stephan Osusky, of Czechoslovakia, and the Norwegian representative, Christian L. Lange, at the meeting today.

The general tenor of the discussion in the council was that Germany had done the right thing in Upper Silesia. Salvador Madariaga, of Spain, paid tribute to Germany's "wisdom" and said the settlement was another proof that the league was the guardian of international law.

GERMAN SITUATION

Nothing developed at the meeting about what Germany will do concerning Jews in Germany proper. Some delegates thought Capt. Anthony Eden, of Great Britain, was alluding to this when he said that progress had been made and expressed the hope that it would be continued "so that there will be a solution of all the difficulties connected with the problem."

Rene Massigh, of France, said that "anxiety may not be entirely removed by a regional settlement," but he recognized that the council was not authorized to deal with the situation of the Jews in Germany as a whole.

BRITISH DELAY DEBT DECISION

LONDON, June 6.—(INS.)—The British Cabinet today postponed consideration of the foreign debt issue to give the United States government ample time to make a full pronouncement on the question.

International News Service learned that Prime Minister MacDonald and many of the cabinet ministers, some of whom are still on vacation, had agreed in telephone conversations to defer their conference on debts from tomorrow until the end of the week.

At that time a full cabinet meeting will be summoned to discuss the issue. Decision on the June 15 instalment, described by MacDonald as an "awkward hurdle," is then expected to be reached.

Toscanini Spurns Bayreuth Concert

MILAN, Italy, June 6.—(AP.)—Arturo Toscanini has notified the management of the Bayreuth musical festival that he will not conduct a Wagnerian program there, June 29, because his sentiments as a man and an artist were hurt by the Nazi anti-Jewish attitude.

The famous director said he and 12 other musicians had protested some time ago to Chancellor Hitler against treatment of Jews in Germany, but had not received a reply.

America Blamed For Hitler 'Debacle'

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP.)—Asserting a share of responsibility for "the present moral debacle in Germany" belongs to the United States, Representative James M. Beck, of Philadelphia, said in an address last night that the world's best hope of peace perished with the German republic.

U. S. Delegates Study Money Stabilization

Problem Reviewed In Final Days Aboard Ship

S. S. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AT SEA, June 6.—(AP.)—Stabilization of currencies is described as probably the most vital problem facing the economic conference at London.

American delegates and experts are devoting their final days afloat to intense study, but American plans for dollar stabilization are closely guarded pending developments at home and abroad.

It is pointed out, nevertheless, that little progress in whittling away tariff barriers is likely until stabilization of currencies is effected.

With many factors entering the problem, delegation quarters observe that de facto stabilization—subject to revision—is likely to precede final fixing of currency parities.

There is much interest in a suggestion that the World Bank's functions be expanded to assist in ending gyrations of exchange rates, possibly through arranging for some European central banks to keep foreign currency reserves with the World Bank.

The previous practice of keeping reserves in private banks led to quick shifts of large amounts of fluid capital, with disturbing effects.

Secretary Hull, leader of the United States delegation, is devoting hours to work in his cabin. His strolls on deck are infrequent.

PARIS, June 6.—(AP.)—Premier Edouard Daladier will head a delegation of six ministers, one under-secretary and a large group of experts to the world economic conference opening in London June 12.

BRITISH DEBT OFFER HINTED

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(INS.)—Definite indications that Great Britain has made a debt proposal to the United States were forthcoming from administration officials today.

For the first time in weeks, officials withheld a negative reply in response to questions as to whether any debt offer had been received from Great Britain.

Asked whether Sir Ronald Lindsay had delivered a British debt offer and whether a reply was under consideration by this government, Assistant Secretary of State Moley said:

"I can't say."

This was the first time Moley has declined to state that no offers have been received. The White House also declined to comment.

Italy and Albania Reported at Odds

ROME, June 6.—(AP.)—The presence in Rome today of the Italian military adviser to Albania and the apostolic delegate to Tirana emphasized a strained relation between Italy and Albania, hitherto so close that the latter has been considered a protectorate of Italy.

FRANCE AGREES TO 4-POWER PEACE PACT

ROME, June 6.—(AP.)—Henry de Juvenel, the French Ambassador, received instructions today from Paris to initial the latest text of the Mussolini four-power peace pact, and thus the principal obstacle in the way of execution of the agreement was removed.

Simultaneously, the British Ambassador, Sir Roland Graham, received similar instruction from London. The Italian government is ready to sign, and the German Ambassador, Ulrich von Hassel, is awaiting authorization from Berlin.

The ambassadors forwarded to their governments last night the final text of the pact, which was agreed upon after long discussions in the last few days.

These discussions centered principally on Article 3, which refers to disarmament and to the arms equality of Germany.

In the event Ambassador von Hassel received favorable instructions in time, it was possible the pact would be signed soon enough to give Premier Mussolini an opportunity to make a speech before the Senate, which was scheduled to discuss the foreign affairs budget late this afternoon.

The general purpose of the Mussolini pact is to associate Great Britain, Italy, France and Germany in common policies for the preservation of peace. When it was originally presented, last March, France raised objections on the grounds that the rights of the smaller European powers might be jeopardized and that the operation of the past should be brought within the framework of the League of Nations.

'Never Threaten,' Retiring League Head Advises

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 6.—(AP.)—Here is the doctrine that Sir Eric Drummond, of Great Britain, learned from 13 years as head of the League of Nations secretariat:

First, never make a threat; second, tell the truth; third, place all your cards on the table.

Sir Eric, who is retiring as secretary-general, explained his views today at a farewell luncheon given by the International Press. He said:

"And this applies to individuals as well as to nations."

JAPAN REPLIES TO ROOSEVELT

TOKIO, June 6.—(AP.)—With the cabinet's approval and the emperor's sanction, a reply to President Roosevelt's disarmament appeal of May 16 was telegraphed today to Ambassador Debuchi in Washington.

Its contents were not disclosed, and will not be published until it is communicated to the State Department. Then it will be made public simultaneously in Washington and Tokio.

It was authoritatively indicated that the answer is a brief and cordial endorsement of the President's proposals "in principle," though more definite statements as to Japan's position regarding disarmament are reserved.

COTTON'S UP, WOOL'S UP, SILK'S UP, RAYON'S UP, LEATHER'S UP, RUBBER'S UP—AND GOING UPPER!

JUNE, the Month of RISES!

Like the elevator boy, commodities this month are going up. We hate to open our mail, it's so darn full of, "Sorry, but we shall have to advance our entire so-and-so line, as of —;" and, "We regret exceedingly to inform you of our inability to deliver, due to the acute shortage and—"

And the reason we're citing this is to urge you to fill your requirements while you can still buy at "preflation" prices. Along with 74 other stores, whose buying we share, we placed huge orders to "cover" ourselves and our customers, months before the present June rises. Everything your family wears is here for less—much less—than it can be bought for later. Make no mistake about it, the government means business. And if that June 12th Conference in London does its job, you'll witness price up-risings that will make these June rises look like declines!

Our Wonderfully Convenient
"Extended Charge"
NETS YOU IMMEDIATE PROFIT!

If your money's in the bank, or in the stock market—leave it there. We will trade you our perfectly good apparel for your perfectly good promise to pay later. Just say, "Charge It!" and pay out of your income—as you earn it—either weekly or monthly. And remember—whether you buy for cash or "charge it"—you pay us exactly the same price, in every instance. It costs us far less to do business here—and our prices show it more than ever this June—the Month of Rises!

We pride ourselves on being the only apparel store offering an "Extended Charge" Plan, selling quality merchandise at prices competitive with those of the largest stores.

CHARGES COYNE 'OWNS' COUNCIL, MAYOR SLATE

James P. Bailey, candidate for a Republican councilmanic nomination, last night told a Brookline audience that Mayor John S. Herron and five members of City Council who will seek nomination at the September primary, are "owned, boots and breeches, by Senator James J. Coyne."

Bailey asserted that his campaign was based on anti-Coyneism and the assumption that "public office is still a public trust." He charged that Coyne was responsible for failure to obtain election reform legislation for Allegheny County, and assailed the Oakland Senator for his vote against old-age pension legislation in the last session of the Legislature.

The Tenth Ward entry in the councilmanic race warned his hearers to beware of efforts to steal the election at the primary for machine candidates, He said:

"If crimes against the ballot box are not treason, then there is no such thing as treason. Yet in Allegheny County during the past 18 months 352 election officers either have pleaded guilty or have been convicted of election law violations, and not one of them is in jail."

Bailey urged that there be only one mayoralty candidate against Herron, contending a division of anti-Coyne strength through a multiplicity of candidates was the only hope Herron has for nomination. Only a political upset would end racketeering, Bailey said.

Coyne, the speaker said, wished to put the Pittsburgh public schools in politics so the teaching force could become a part of the spoils of politics.

WAR PERIL LURKS IN FIGHT ON ECONOMIC NATIONALISM

London Parley May Choose Sides for Next Conflict

This is the third of a series of six articles by Samuel Crowther, noted author and writer on economic subjects, dealing with the forthcoming London Economic Conference. The fourth article will appear tomorrow.

By SAMUEL CROWTHER

Among the announced purposes of the London conference is to call a halt to what has come to be known as "economic nationalism."

Nations the world over are cutting down their imports of foreign goods and foods by various measures, ranging from high tariffs to absolute prohibitions and at the same time, by patriotic campaigns, are trying to train their peoples to buy home products. Every nation is fighting desperately to free itself from dependence on any other nation for the necessities of either peace or war.

This struggle by nations to be wholly free—to be nations in fact as well as in name—is supposed in the cant of today to be less than high-minded and goes under the name of economic nationalism.

The cult of internationalism holds that it is wrong to love one's country first and always to the exclusion of all other loves, and is therefore opposed to anything which serves to strengthen the bonds of nationality.

Selfish Opposition

The builders and owners of ships, the exporters and importers, the bankers in international finance, the makers of goods for foreign markets and the retailers of imported goods are not internationalists. They are not bothered by any theories, but they are against economic nationalism because it is taking away their business. The pacifists are against economic nationalism because they imagine, rather curiously, that it leads to war.

This strange crew have joined to chant that economic nationalism is breaking down the world and that only by restoring the old channels of foreign trade can there be any hope for peace, security and prosperity.

And in the desperate condition of humanity today, there are many who really believe that it will be possible for the conference to turn the clock back—and that changing the clock will change the time. Hence all the talk about general tariff agreements and restoring the trade of the world.

Whose trade is to be restored?

Memories are short, but who that remembers the condition before the great war wants those conditions restored?

In 1914 Great Britain and Germany were desperately fighting each other in every market of the world. Actual war had for some years been regarded as inevitable. The only question was how and when it would start.

Foreign trade has never made for peace. The warship has always had to be within call of the merchant ship.

May not economic nationalism be the real road to self-respecting peace without agreements?

And may not the London conference, if it succeeds in staying the progress of nationalism, be picking the sides for the next war?

The world learned much during the great war. Those nations that depend on imports of food learned that it did not take many submarines to cut off their food supply.

Millions of mothers know all about that.

Those nations which had their own food but depended on foreign factories for goods and supplies learned that they be left helpless.

We in the United States, for all our power, found that only by the favor of the belligerents could we have certain drugs and chemicals, nitrates, potash, rubber and a series of other essentials that we had never bothered about.

The lessons of the war were well learned. Science was brought into the picture.

Italy, for instance, under Mussolini, developed water power to avoid importing coal from England, and has so pushed the cultivation of wheat that in another year the country will be self-contained as to food. The United States, Great Britain and Japan so developed their chemical industries as to be entirely independent of Germany.

Where one country gained, another lost—Chile had her old market for natural nitrates taken over by the new chemical products and she now faces ruin.

The nations that had formerly exported food found that their former buyers were growing their own food, while the nations that had formerly exported manufactured goods found that their old buyers were making their own goods.

Russia Going Free

Russia, once a great market for British and German goods, shut herself off from the world by revolution and then turned up with a vast program for complete self-containment.

The United States aided all these efforts toward economic independence by selling machinery, lending the money to buy it, and establishing branch factories make on the ground what had formerly been imported from America.

Of course very few of the nations that are trying for economic independence are capable of carrying out their plans. Only the United States and Russia have the variety of resources necessary for complete self-containment.

Up to date, the effect has been merely to break up the old trade without creating any new trade, and undoubtedly this is one of the causes of world confusion.

But now the nations are beginning to learn that those which cannot be self-contained alone, may, with advantage, join with other nations or colonies to form economic units which can be independent of the rest of the world. Thus Italy is working with the Near East, Germany with Austria, Great Britain and France with their colonies, and many smaller nations are trying to find a basis for joining with their neighbors.

The United States, once it is rid of its international busy-bodies and learns to mind its own business, will, although not through necessity, work with Latin-America. Then we shall be on our way to a real world peace founded on freedom instead of a false peace founded on restrictions.

The drive for ECONOMIC NATIONALISM is a drive for FULL LIBERTY AND INDEPENDENCE. It is not in keeping with the traditions of the United States to check any movement towards liberty.

Rail Brotherhood Head Fights Ouster

CLEVELAND, June 6. ORDER DOUGLAS GIVE UP BEER

A court argument over ownership of a lot of beer was spread on the records today.

The case involves John Douglas, former politician, and H. M. Fox, Reading brewer, who is a brother-in-law of Henry (Young Eppy) Epstein.

Fox's counsel, Attorney O. Hicks Friedman, obtained a writ to recover 950 cases of beer and ale from Douglas' American Hotel Supply Company. At the same time Fox made information against Douglas before Alderman Thomas Flanigan charging him with passing a worthless check written for $1,199.

Murren Declines 90-Ounce Beer Challenge

Chief County Detective George W. Murren today received a challenge from an anonymous source. A 90-ounce beer stein was sent to him, inscribed thus: "I bet you can't."

Murren will keep the stein, but won't take the bet. He doesn't like beer well enough to drain the glass at one sitting.

MOTHER KILLED SAVING SONS

BURGETTSTOWN, Pa., June 6.—A woman gave her life to save her two small children from death under a moving train last night.

Mrs. Stella Zabetakis, 33, was killed by a freight train as she rushed across the tracks to warn her two sons, Steve, 7, and Manusos, 11, who were in its path. Her sons saw her die.

An older son, John, 15, hurried to the tracks to find the victim was his mother.

FIGHTS ARREST; IN HOSPITAL

Frank Steele, 57, city white wing, was in Allegheny General Hospital today suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, after an alleged altercation with a policeman.

According to Patrolman Frank Collins, Steele became obstreperous when he attempted to arrest him at Wylie avenue and Washington street for insulting passers-by. Steele, Collins said, attacked him and tore his uniform. Collins said he struck the man, who staggered against a building, his head hitting the brick surface.

Steele, a Negro, lives at 2314 Hallett street.

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Hearing growlers complain about the team because of the slump is the reason for this explosion. You hear them say, "Why don't they bench him, or why do they allow this or that," most always taking a swipe at some individual member of the team.

A slump is a bitter thing. There is no warning as to its approach and no indication as to its duration. It just is.

We all get them. I know what happens to me. I get worrying about a broadcast, worrying about what I said, worrying if I created the wrong impression and pretty soon I try to get so careful that muscles and nerves seems taut. My head doesn't work at all and if it does the muscles won't obey what it commands. The more desperate I try the worse I get. The world begins to look sour; I get sensitive to even slight criticism and wind up at night just hating everybody and myself worst of all.

How do slumps end? Two ways. You either get so darn disgusted with yourself that you don't really care what happens an more, which immediately relieves the tension. The other way is to run into someone who is generous with praise and you begin to think things aren't so bad after all and get all pepped up with confidence.

Can't we try some of this medicine on the ball players? Instead of pointing out the defects build up the good points?

Slumps take the sweetness out of life. Aside from their effect on the teams standing they are unhappy episodes in the individual lives of the the players.

Next time you see a ball player or anyone suffering from the blues, slip a good word in. See the eyes brighten and the lips relax into a smile. You'll feel better yourself.

There is a story about Jay Kirke, the Babe Ruth of the the American Association. About a dozen years ago he was leading the league. He had just been married and every evening his dutiful wife would say:

"How did it go today, honey?"

Swelling up with pride and love for his spouse, Jay would toss back:

"Five for four, sweetheart," meaning four hits out of five times at bat.

This went on for some time. One day with a batting rival pressing him closely and a doubleheader scheduled, he failed to connect out of 10 times at bat.

That night his loving wife, as usual, met him with the big smile and the inevitable words:

"How did it go today, honey?"

Jay growled:

"You do the cooking. I'll do the hitting."

Jolson to Star With Whiteman; Ford Flirting With Radio; Fight May Go On Air

By AIRCASTER

By way of being uncomplimentary, I suspect, someone wants to know (seeing that I've interviewed quite a few radio persons myself) what it would be like if a scribbler interviewed himself. Doubtless he has been reading about the imminent I. Q. test via NBC, and wonders just how intelligent or well-informed one must, or should be, to indite items about the radio.

The idea struck me as not at all bad, and the Q. and A. ousiness would read like this—

Q.—Will the networks broadcast the Baer-Schmeling fight?

A.—The NBC will broadcast it—if it first pays Jack Dempsey's demand for $20,000 for the rights.

Q.—Do you think Al Jolson ever will return to the air?

A.—Jolson will be with Paul Whiteman on the first two-hour program over WEAF-WCAE, Monday, June 26.

Q.—I thought you said Walter O'Keefe would take that job?

A.—O'Keefe will be the voice on the candy hour which Phil Spitalny made famous, when it returns in August, and Spitalny, most likely, will return too.

Q.—Is there any truth in the report that Henry Ford is getting the radio bug at last?

A.—Possibly. The Jack Benny program is said to be interesting him and Ford is reported to be wondering about a full-hour program for WEAF-WCAE and WJZ-KDKA simultaneously.

Q.—Are the Boswells leaving the United States as reported?

A.—Yes. On June 17, when they sail for Europe.

Q.—Well, you're so smart, can you say off-hand, whose birthday today is?

A.—Sure, Bert Lown's and Ted Lewis'. And by the way, did you know that Irvin S. Cobb has been signed up again?

DOCTORS FIGHT NUDISM AS DANGEROUS

By LEIGH MATTESON
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 6.—Aside from the usual moral objections, the most serious criticism of increasing nudism comes from the medical profession, it was learned in the International News Service survey of the remarkable growth of the practice in America this year.

In formulating the ideals of the nudists, those enterprising ex-clergymen, Dr. Henry S. Huntington and Dr. Ilsley Boone, as organizers of the International Nudist Conference, announced:

"Our goal is the healthy mind in a perfect body.

"This is not only a creed, but a way of life. Sun, light and air are vital conditions of human well-being. We believe these elements are insufficiently used in present day life, to the detriment of physical and moral health.

WHOLESOME CREED

"For health and recreation and for the conditioning of man to his world we offer a new social practice, based on the wholesome value of exposure to these elements and in the spirit of naturalness, cheerfulness and cleanliness of mind and body that they symbolize.

"We aim to make the fullest possible use of sun, light and air by a program of exercise and life in the open in such a way as will result in the maximum physical and mental benefit."

In these aims it is the emphasis on exposure to sunlight that eminent physicians criticize. During the past few years the wide use of ultra-violet rays from artificial sun-lamps has taught the medical profession a lot it did not know about the effects of sunlight.

The chief discoveries, in application to nudism and also to sun exposure at beaches in bathing suits, are:

That some persons—the very blonde types and certain other persons with definite skin conditions—should not be exposed to even a few minutes of direct sunlight, as they receive severe burns or suffer danger after-effects.

DANGEROUS EFFECTS

That too much sunlight, allowed to fall on too much skin area, even with those darker types who do not sunburn, produces dangerous after-effects.

Every year at this time, during the past decade, the New York Academy of Medicine, through Dr. Iago Galdston, has issued warnings against the effects of too much sun-bathing.

Many medical observers have noted also that protracted exposure to sunlight leaves many individuals extremely fatigued. This is considered a dangerous after-effect of the infra-red and ultra-violet rays in sunlight.

WOMAN HEADS CHURCH

BOSTON, June 6.—(AP.)—Miss Mary G. Ewing of Brookline, has been elected president of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, the mother church announced at its annual meeting yesterday.

Ezra W. Palmer and Edward L. Ripley, both of Brookline, were elected clerk and treasurer. Miss Ewing succeeds Ralph O. Brewster, former governor of Maine, who is retiring as president.

More than 5,000 persons, representative of many countries, heard the message of the directors, read by Charles E. Heitman, chairman, announcing that no further contributions to the fund for the building of the new $4,000,000 home now under construction for the Christian Science Publishing Society need be made after July 1.

The message praised the "sacrifice and unselfish efforts" of those "who have made possible the completion of the new publishing house without delay and without debt."

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Very Difficult Hand

Bridge hands are like situations in life. The central theme of some is so crystal clear, so simple and so well worked out that it may be carried through with the utmost ease. Other hands, both in bidding and in play, are so intensely complicated that if a player finds the correct course of action in a given situation, others are apt to say that the play was "Double Dummy"—that is, played as though all hands were exposed.

The complicated problems of play and bidding, however, add a zest to the game, just as the complicated problems of life do to living.

Recently in a Duplicate game in New York City Mr. William B. Tower, Jr., secretary of the National Bridge Association, had presented to him one of the most difficult Double Dummy problems in play I have seen for many a day. He realized that he must fulfill his contract, as his partner had doubled an adverse Overcall which, it appeared to Mr. Tower, after the Dummy was exposed, could have been defeated 1,750 points, and he had reopened the bidding.

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ 9654 ♡ 93 ◇ K Q J 9 7 3 ♣ A
♠ 3 ♡ K 10 5 4 ◇ 10 8 6 5 2 ♣ 8 7 2	North / West East / South	♠ A J 8 2 ♡ Q 8 2 ◇ 4 ♣ 10 9 6 5 3
	♠ K Q 10 7 ♡ A J 7 6 ◇ A ♣ K Q J 4

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass (1)	Pass	1 ♠	2 ◇ (2)
Double (3)	Pass	2 ♡ (4)	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	4 N T (5)	Pass
5 ♠ (6)	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Double	Redouble (7)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—North has an Opening bid, but decides to pass and await developments.

2—A perfectly terrible Overcall, but some Duplicate players are like that.

3—Obviously entirely sound. If South has enough high cards to justify a Third Hand Opening bid, then the set of two diamonds doubled must be greater than the value of the game. If he has enough to make a Slam, then the set should exceed in value that of a Slam—even a vulnerable one.

4—A bad bid. South should let well enough alone.

5—South has a tremendous hand, no doubt, and wants to reach the Slam.

6—North signs off.

7—This comes almost as a matter of course. It is based on the old proverb that "one might as well hang for a sheep as a lamb."

The play was extremely interesting, for the hand was as difficult as any problem ever devised by those who indulge in that kind of sport. The Opening lead was a diamond. South winning with the Ace. At this point South took stock of the situation. He reasoned that, to justify a Double, East must hold not less than four spades to the Ace-Knave. If he held five, the contract was impossible in any event, but if he held four the chance of success, though very remote, was still there; so Mr. Tower went to work by leading a small club to the Ace in Dummy, and now laid down the King of diamonds. Obviously, if East trumped, the contract would be made. East, however, was too good a player to do this, and discarded a small club. Mr. Tower discarded from his hand a heart. Another diamond was led, and East again discarded a club, while South discarded the second heart. Now the Declarer abandoned the diamond suit and led the spade 4 from Dummy. East played the 2 and South finessed the 7. When West followed suit with the 3, the Declarer knew that his reading of the trump situation was correct. He now led the King and Queen of Clubs, discarding in the Dummy the two hearts. The next lead was the heart Knave, which was trumped in Dummy, and the next, a spade. East now was helpless. Whether he won the spade trick or not made no difference. He could only return either a heart or a trump, and in any event South must win all the tricks but one.

By the careful play of retaining the heart Ace, South had made what appeared to be an impossible contract and incidentally had restored himself to the good graces of his partner, because the value of six spades redoubled exceeded the set of 7 tricks which West could have suffered at his contract of two diamonds.

Today's Question

Will you kindly tell me whether I bid the following hand correctly or not? I held the South hand:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	Double	2 ♣	Pass
5 ♣	5 ◇	Pass	Pass
Pass

I held

♠ — ♡ A Q J 5 3 2 ◇ A Q J 7 5 3 2 ♣ —

Answer: The final bid is eminently correct. However, it would have been better to have bid two spades over East's Opening bid of one spade rather than double. It is possible, if your partner held four hearts, that the Slam might have been bid.

Quickest Way to Break Child's Fever Is Found By North Side Mother!

Mrs. N. Swartz, 1149 Admiral St., N. S., Pittsburgh

Declares "The Family Physician" Medicine Is a Blessing to Run-Down, Half-Sick, Nervous, Constipated Adults, Too

Perhaps never in the history of Pittsburgh has a medicine swept so swiftly to wide-spread popularity as has that grand old "The Family Physician" Medicine with its 68 year service record of saving children from illness and mothers from heartache and worry. Crowds which have stormed the Mayflower and Sun Drug Stores form a fitting tribute to this old reliable medicine which is so effective in breaking fever, ending colds and cold coughs, banishing sour, acid indigestion, and freeing children of that curse of civilization, constipation.

Mrs. N. Swartz, well-known matron of 1149 Admiral st., N. S., Pittsburgh, tells a story that should thrill other mothers with hope and confidence in their ability to save their children from illness. She said recently:

"It's now more than 30 years since my son brought home that first bottle of "The Family Physician" Medicine. I have used it for my five children with wonderful success—for all kinds of sickness. I never saw its equal for breaking fever, cleansing the bowels or sweetening an upset stomach. I recommend it to every one and they all come back and bless me for telling them about it. I wish I could talk to ALL mothers and urge them to try it. And it's just as quick to build up grown ups who are sick, weak, nervous, headachy and troubled by acid, gassy indigestion."

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE AND TRIAL OFFER!

Try "The Family Physician" Medicine entirely at our risk. You need pay only 30c or 60c a bottle, but even that small sum will be repaid if this wonderful medicine doesn't QUICKLY bring relief. Get it at any Mayflower or Sun Cut Rate or, better still, stop in at Sun Cut Rate 21 Diamond st., and talk to the special representative who is explaining "The Family Physician" Medicine.

I like mine "Toasted"

I have my preferences. When it comes to cigarettes I like mine "Toasted". Not that I understand "Toasting". I simply enjoy what "Toasting" does! I like the fine quality of Luckies—their mellow-mildness. And their purity means a lot to me. For, after all, my cigarette and my lips come in such close personal contact, I've reached for a Lucky ever since I've reached smoking age, and if my womanly reasons count for anything, it's always "Luckies Please!"

MIDNIGHT ENDS 'WIN WINGS' CONTEST

The "Win Your Wings" Contest ends tonight at midnight—your last chance to win a pilot's flying course or a trip to the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

Thirty-six questions, which appeared in 12 installments in the Sun-Telegraph, must be answered correctly and an essay written on "Why I Want to Fly."

Five judges will award the 10 prizes, consisting of pilots' courses, free airplane trips to Chicago, Washington, Cleveland and Akron. The judges are Richard W. Robbins, chairman of the board, Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc.; Maj. H. S. Martin, vice president of Pennsylvania Airlines; Maj. Halsey R. Bazley, manager of the Allegheny County Municipal Airport; Frank Hawks, noted speed flier and holder of numerous records, and Department of Commerce Inspector William Doak.

The judges will score contestants on accuracy of their answers and merit of their essay. The first prize winner has the choice of two round-trip passages to Chicago or a flying course at the Penn School of Aviation.

Other prizes include two round trips to Washington, two round trips to Cleveland and three round trips over Pennsylvania Airlines to Akron.

To be eligible for the pilot's flying course the winner must be over 16 years of age and capable of passing the Department of Commerce physical tests. If a minor, the winner must have parents' written consent to fly.

Entries postmarked after midnight tonight will be disqualified.

Bird Nest Re-routes Uncle Sam's Mail

Fingerprint Rush On at World's Fair

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP.)—Crooks will go a long way to avoid being finger printed, but upright citizens are rushing to get prints of their fingers at the Bureau of Investigation's exhibit at the Century of Progress Exposition.

Self-Consciousness Cause Of Much Unhappiness

Just what is that bogey we call self-consciousness?

Is it a hopeless sickness, fastened on to us by a cruel fate?

Or is it maybe something that we have handed ourselves?

And, if so, can we cure it?

Mary wants to know, for self-consciousness is making life desperate and tragic for her. It is shutting her in a prison, walling life away.

"Why? Why?" she cries. And "What can I do?"

What is the answer? What can be done?

Barbara asked that once, too—and she found the answer. So can Mary and you.

Barbara was just an average girl—young, warm, eager, but no beauty—and as she began to ripen into womanhood, she saw life spread before her adventurous, thrilling, fascinating and brand-new. She longed to be a part of it, to get close to it, to have it come flowing to her, to center around her—and the very intensity of her longing terrified her.

How could she grasp it for herself? How could she make it come to her? It was so big! So busy! But—she was she wasn't she? The center of her world? And she was being passed by!

So she began to think, and brood about it, and feel resentful. Demand, in her heart, to be noticed. And the more she wasn't noticed, the more fierce that secret demand grew; the more she crowded out the dreams and longings of other people.

AUNT EXPLAINED

And before long she began to blush and stammer—to imagine that people were staring at her, thinking she was ridiculous, whispering about her. She argued with herself that she wasn't much to look at, and that folks couldn't be noticing her like that—yet she kept right on imagining they were.

And so life, that she longed for so hungrily, was passing her by—and her heart was breaking.

And then Aunt Susan took her in hand.

"Nonsense, child!" she said comfortably, when Barbara told her that her life was ruined. "All that ails you is that you're too stuck on yourself!"

Barbara stared at her, stuttered with astonishment.

"Don't kid me!" Aunt Sue insisted. "That's exactly what's wrong with you! You're so all-fired busy thinking about yourself and what kind of an impression you're making that you're paralyzed. And with all your thinking about yourself, you don't actually respect yourself enough to be yourself. You're constantly trying to be what you think someone else would like you to be, and not what you are!

GOOD ADVICE

"So, now, let's do a right about face! It's right and proper for you to want to make a splash in the world. You'd never get anywhere if you didn't! But—your method's all wrong, youngster! Let's try this!

"The next time you talk to someone, and you begin to think 'What does he think of me?' Stop. Think instead 'What does he think of the weather, or politics, or that new play so many people are talking about.'

"Get off yourself. Get off the way folks think about you—Begin to honestly wonder what they think about living—and ask 'em. Turn your own spotlight on the other fellow, and you'll forget all about whether his is turned on you or not!"

And Barbara tried it! and it worked!

Will it work for you? Yes; if you'll have the spunk to try it, and keep on trying it, until you are genuinely interested in people, and can stand on your own feet and be yourself.

Then you'll find yourself part of the great procession of living. You'll find people liking you and seeking you—and you'll be free!

Debutantes' Lot Not All Ease, Fay King Tells Working Girl

By FAY KING

The girl who works cannot imagine a debutante being unhappy in her life of seeming ease and social pleasures.

Yet struggling along in the business world may not be so boring as the endless gestures of that more pretentious world.

Finishing schools turn out carbon copy personalities of stoic poise. Formal education surpresses spontaneity, originality and enthusiasm. These would be a serious handicap in circles where all is polite strategy.

There is much the girl who works cannot afford or do because she lacks the means. But there is just as much the socially ambitious girl cannot afford to do, lest she lose prestige.

Few of the more interesting persons are listed in social registers, and the girl who works is more likely to meet them.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

'After Theater Eats'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly tell me what you should order when you go to get something to eat after a dance or after a show?

DOT.

Indeed I shall help you, but I wish that you would be kind enough to send me an addressed envelope and let me send you a pamphlet I have prepared on "After Theater Eats." It is several pages long, and in it I have listed everything I could think of appropriate to eat after a dance or theater—from a humble roll and coffee to the aristocratic dishes "under glass."

Leaving Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you be kind enough to send me the correct etiquette of calling cards for a widow, regarding the number to leave for a formal call on man and wife and so forth?

I do not know whether one is sufficient, or whether I should leave two?

When calling on me, this woman left two cards, her's and her husband's.

J.

The rule is that a woman leaves her cards for the hostess of a home, and one for any other woman residing or visiting in that home. But no more than three cards. That is, suppose that there is, besides Mrs. Brown, the hostess, an adult daughter, and, say, an aunt who is visiting there at the time. Then three cards would be left.

But a woman does not leave a card for a man.

Your friend was correct—she left one of her cards for you, and one of her husband's, for a man's card is left in compliment to a woman.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Addison's Disease

We are endowed with various glands, complex structures found in different parts of the body. They vary in shape, size and function. Perhaps the most interesting, and about which the least is known, are the "adrenal glands."

Dr. Copeland

The adrenal glands are two small structures, each in shape like a cocked-hat, and snugly placed on top of each kidney. They are yellowish in color and each weighs about four grams. They secrete a substance called "epinophrine."

In 1855, an eminent physician named Addison first described a fatal disease due to a disturbance of these glands. In honor of this man and in appreciation of his classical work, the name "Addison's disease" was given this ailment. I am glad to say that the disease is not as frequently encountered as in the days when Addison first discovered it. Fortunately, too, it is no longer considered a fatal disease.

The skin of the sufferer is deep bronze in color. This changes to a light yellow or a deep brown. In some cases it may even become black. At first the discoloration is confined only to the face and hands, but eventually involves the entire body.

In addition to this change of color, the victim complains of marked muscular weakness, spells of profound exhaustion and attacks of nausea and vomiting. Unfortunately, there are no early signs of the disease to warn the sufferer of his ailment.

It is only within recent years that hope for a cure of this affliction has been aroused. Various glandular extracts, particularly an extract of the adrenal gland, have been successfully used. Though not all cases have been cured, there is great hope that a successful form of treatment will soon be achieved. For the present, the injection of certain extracts improve the general health and vitality of the patient.

The sufferer from this disease must avoid sudden exertion and severe muscular exercise. He must be free from heavy work and worry. Emotional strain and excitement should be avoided. Hygienic rules, particularly those that relate to cleanliness, abundant rest, warmth, fresh air, sunlight and nutritious food, must have a prominent part in the care of these unfortunate persons.

Answers to Health Queries

A.—No, but watch your diet and it should not be necessary to take it.

Madge's Use of Word "Gangster" Stops Nick

Nick's reaction to my provocative question, "Didn't you tell me you weren't a gangster?" was all that I had dared to hope. He stopped short in the gorilla-like rush he was making toward me—an advance which I was evading with the constant fear that I might trip and fall upon the uneven surface of the meadow—and gave utterance to a sort of puzzled snarl.

"Gangster! Where d'ye get that stuff? I told you once that moniker didn't fit me. And what's that got to do with the high and wide evening we're going to start pretty soon. A good time like the one we're going to have has to start out right with a nifty little petting party. I can see you're a cut above the dames a guy generally picks up, and I guess you had a good reason for taking a lift with me. But get me straight on this. I never yet set my eye on anybody, picked 'em out for myself, but what I finished the job. So, come on, Baby! Don't be stingy!"

I had won my first skirmish! I knew it by the doubtful intonation in his blustering speech. The touch of contempt in my voice, the evident belief of mine that only a gangster would act as he had done, the effect of what he patently believed to be my "classiness" as he no doubt would express it—all these had stopped him in his primitive brutal seizure of me, for that, I was sure, had been his intention.

MADGE PARRIES

I did not over-estimate this first victory, however. I knew that he was only halted, not stopped, and that at any second his arrogant brutality might triumph over his desire to appear "classy." So it was with a frantic little prayer that I answered his appeal.

"Don't hurry me, please!" I purposely put a touch of disdain into my voice. "Surely there will be plenty of time for us to get acquainted when this horrid business is over. You don't even know whether or not your friend is dead or alive, and you are talking about petting parties. Really, I am so nervous about it all, I could scream. If you are the gentleman I think you are, you will leave me to myself for a while until I have a chance to pull myself together. I—I—assure you—I am—so—grateful to you for all you have done that you will have no reason to call me stingy. But you must not hurry me!"

I do not think I ever have felt so degraded as while I was uttering those words, infusing them as I tried to with a distinct coquettish promise, even while I parried for time.

"'All the waters of Araby,'" I said to myself with scathing self-reproach, then braced myself for another round of my combat as Nick said raucously:

"This is all very pretty, but what I'm wondering is this—suppose you're just stalling for time until friend husband comes down from that auto-gyro?"

DENIES HAVING HUSBAND

He had advanced another step toward me, and I took a quick dancing step to one side.

"Will you be very angry?" I asked coquettishly, "if I confess something to you?"

"Go ahead, shoot!.. he said grimly.

"I haven't been stalling about anything I've told you except one little thing," I told him. "You see I'm not used to anything like this—I never saw a man just like you before, and when I saw you—sort of—sort of—"

"You mean when you doped out I'd fell for you like a ton of brick," he said smirkingly.

"Why! I was so afraid of you — at first —" I ignored his amendment and tried to infuse admiration into my voice, "that I made up that part about my husband. There are two men in the auto-gyro, but neither of them is—is——"

The words stuck in my throat, and I fairly jumped with relief when Nick finished the sentence for me.

"Neither of them friend husband! Ha! ha; that's a good one. Baby so afraid of me that she invents having a husband. What you deserve for that one is a-plenty. I've a notion to take you across my knee right now. I'll let you off this time, but if you stall with me again, the Lord help you. What I'll do to you will be a-plenty. But come along now. You needn't be scared of me. We'll postpone the petting party until after I find out what's happened to Tony."

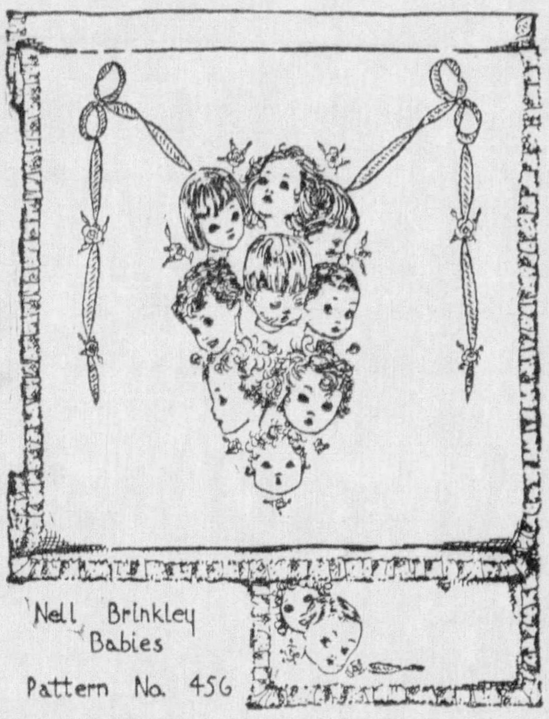
NELL BRINKLEY CARRIAGE SET



Nell Brinkley is world-renowned for the lovely, fluffy girls she draws. No less charming, well-known and inimitable are her baby illustrations—dainty, winsome, angelic babies that simply must be adored! For the first time a collection of some of her lovely baby heads is offered for embroidery. They have been grouped on a carriage cover and a pillow to make a bouquet as dainty and flower-like as any flowers that grow. All the Nell Brinkley winsomeness and delicacy of line have been retained in this embroidery interpretation for outline stitch. The carriage cover is regulation size, the motif measuring 17½x19 inches while the corner motif for the pillow measures 8x12 inches. The motif can be used on a crib cover or the separate heads can be cut from the motif and used on a variety of baby accessories. The transfer pattern includes color suggestions, yardage needed and directions for making a carriage cover and pillow.

Musmanno Urged for Common Pleas Bench

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Mr. Shields

The Independent Republican group of the Eleventh Ward has written a letter to County Judge M. A Musmanno, asking him to become a candidate for nomination to Common Pleas bench in the Septemper primary.

While Judge Musmanno has not responded to this or other requests he has received recently, urging him to run for judicial promotion, the young jurist's restlessness indicates the pleas are not falling on deaf ears. The judge is catching every murmur, and it is better than an even-odds assumption that he will be a candidate.

That intention applies to the judicial primary whether President Judge James R. Macfarlane is or is not a candidate. The same may be said of Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, whose candidacy is assured under any conditions.

Macfarlane Decision To Influence Aspirants

The interpolations are of interest because it is accepted that some attorneys who might otherwise try for the bench will not do so if Judge Macfarlane decides to run for a fourth term. It is understood the attitude of Judge Macfarlane may be a determining factor in the eventual decision of County Chairman William H. Coleman toward seeking a Republican nomination.

There is something of a fetish about the vested right of sitting judges to re-election. The propaganda of the Republican organization in the last primary made that apply to appointive as well as elective judges, a principle the organization did not promote in 1927 when it tried to unseat Judge James H. Gray, the late Judge Richard W. Martin, and Judge Frank I. Gollmar, now sheriff of Allegheny County.

All were appointees of Gov. Pinchot, and the attack on Judges Gray and Martin was frustrated, though Judge Gollmar fell by the wayside.

Three Common Pleas Places Before Voters

There are three Common Pleas bench places before the electorate this year. In addition to Judge Macfarlane, the terms of Judges Harry H. Rowand and Ralph H. Smith expire. Judge Smith is a Pinchot appointee, while Judge Rowand is finishing an elective term of 10 years.

If Judge Macfarlane is not a candidate the bar will consider that there is one directly created vacancy to be filled, and that will invite a large field. While candidates in Allegheny County do not run for designated places, and the attorneys who may enter may not be actually greatly concerned if one of the sitting judges is victim of new blood, they can explain that they are only in the fight because of the vacancy Judge Macfarlane would have insured.

It would mean a warmer campaign, as the lawyers could profess to be fighting among themselves for the Macfarlane place, and not attacking a man already on the bench. It is all very fine-spun legal reasoning, so far as the layman is concerned.

Nothing Heard of Trimble Opposition

This judicial campaign promises to be integrated with the mayoralty, the Council and the Sheriff contests, whatever may be said. The high-minded theory that politics does not enter judicial campaigns is a nifty fiction.

Senator James J. Coyne is reported to have said that he would not be interested in the judicial contest, confining his energies to the mayoralty, Council and Sheriff. Yet if Robert K. Cochrane, of the American Legion, should become a candidate for Sheriff, and should be supported by Judge Smith, it would be no more than natural that Senator Coyne should take a few swipes at Judge Smith in retaliation for the judge's countenance of a foe to the Senator's entry, Sheriff Gollmar.

Incidentally, while there is talk of contests for Common Pleas and County Courts, nothing is heard of opposition to President Judge Thomas P. Trimble of Orphans' Court. This is something of a tribute to the record of Judge Trimble.

Central Labor Union Resolution Cited

The letter from the Eleventh Ward Republicans to Judge Musmanno calls attention to a resolution of the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union, asking the McKees Rocks jurist to be a candidate. It says:

"If there ever was a time when we must have on the bench able and fearless judges it is now. We want on the bench of our Common Pleas Court judges who are divorced from sordid politics, who owe allegiance to no selfish organization or club, who are concerned only with the impartial and honest administration of justice as it is written in the books of law and in the hearts of men.

"You have all these qualifications. As a lawyer espousing the cause of the poor and oppressed, as a member of the Pennsylvania Legislature fighting the battle of the common people, and as a judge of the County Court, holding with an even hand the scales of justice, you have given evidence of possessing the ability and capacity for work in the court of higher jurisdiction and scope."

The letter is signed by Mrs. Mabel Bartels, chairlady of the Republican independents in the Eleventh Ward, and every district leader of the independent group.

2 MEET DEATH STEALING RIDE ON TRUCK

Driver Goes on Way Unaware of Tragedy, Coroner Reports

William Boligga, 19, of 2320 Forbes street, and Adam Matuscek, 28, of 3426 Ligonier street, were killed and a third man was uninjured late yesterday when they were jolted from a truck on which they were stealing a ride on the Ohio River boulveard, near Haysville, according to a coroner's report.

Thomas Dognog, also thrown from the truck, was uninjured. The trio boarded the rear of the truck in Ambridge, according to the report. Apparently unaware of the accident, the driver, whose name has not been learned, did not stop, the report said. The truck was said to be owned by the United Storage and Truck Company.

Miss Jean Hannah, 38, of 2557 Beechwood boulevard, an agent of the Children's Aid Society, who was injured yesterday when her automobile crashed in Lincoln avenue, North Side, was reported recovering today in the Allegheny General Hospital.

VARE DEFEATS PINCHOT'S MAN

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—(AP.)—In what political observers said was the first skirmish in the 1934 Gubernatorial and United States Senatorial fight, William S. Vare, veteran Philadelphia Republican leader, routed the supporters of Gov. Pinchot, former Mayor Harry A. Mackey and City Controller S. Davis Wilson.

Samuel Dunbar, Vare's candidate for the Forty-sixth Ward's place in the powerful Republican City Committee, won handily last night over Councilman Maurice Levick, who had the support of the Mackey-Pinchot-Wilson alliance. The vote was 91 to 56.

Vare took personal charge of Dunbar's fight and broke political precedent last week by appearing before a meeting of ward committeemen in West Philadelphia and ordering Levick's defeat.

The sale was adjourned and referee and bidders marched up town to the Woolworth Building to see if the conference room there would hold the crowd.

We Can't Laugh At Indians for Living in Woods

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Girls, there's a women's reforestation camp in the Adirondack hills.

It was started because we wanted to see what a sweater looked like when it was knitted in a heavy thunder shower.

When you figure in the Campfire Girls and the Boy Scouts you realize we will all soon be back in the woods.

And we used to laugh at the Indians.

In about fifty years from now the farmers will have to blow up all the stumps we are planting this year.

Down in Washington they say Ferdinand Pecora is after a demon income tax wizard.

Ferdy, when you find him, will you please send him to us?

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 6.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Things been just going along fine and it looked like we was going to have some real recovery with Mr. Roosevelt piloting. But I guess it's about over. I see where Congress is starting taking themselves serious again. That means he will have to go on the radio some night and put those gentlemen right back in their place. He made the mistake of keeping 'em there two weeks too long.

Will Rogers

Between 2,000 and 3,000 licenses to sell beer had been issued when Deputy County Treasurer A. E. Anke closed his office last midnight. Hundreds who had been expected to apply for licenses failed to do so, it was revealed.

It was estimated that more than 1,500 dealers who have been selling beer in the county were not in business today. Most of these had applied for permits, it was said, but failed to take them out.

These face prosecution under the state beer control law if they sell the beverage.

CHARGE AGAINST LEADER STIRS DEMOCRATS

Mrs. Felix's Attorney Insists Chairman Opposed Vote Quiz

Accusations that Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence told agents of the United States Department of Justice that no fraud would be found in the Felix-Muldowney district have caused a stir in Democratic ranks.

The charges, made yesterday by Attorney John M. Henry, counsel for Mrs. Anne E. Felix, defeated Democratic candidate for Congress in the Thirty-second District, have been reiterated by Henry.

Lawrence has denied that he did anything to discourage the government investigators from looking for ballot cheating in the Felix precincts which include some of the home districts of Senator James J. Coyne.

FOLLOW RUMORS

The outburst by Henry followed rumors that have been current for some time that the Democratic organization has not been overly enthusiastic in its fight to seat Mrs. Felix as against Michael J. Muldowney, the Coyne protege.

Henry, interviewed following the Hungry Club affair, said:

"I am reliably informed and I know what I am talking about when I say that he (Lawrence) tried to sidetrack any investigation into the Felix-Muldowney district."

Lawrence, however, declares he was responsible for bringing the federal investigators to Pittsburgh. He said he disclosed it regretfully but that it had been a matter of self-defense after Henry's attack. He said:

"Mr. Henry's accusations are absolutely untrue. It would be silly for me to think that I could stop the Department of Justice from doing anything."

Asked if he had in any way discouraged the agents from going the limit on the Felix case, he said:

"No, I did not."

He did qualify his denial, however, by stating that he told the government men there were plain cases of fraud in the Thirtieth (Erk-Brooks) district, while in the Felix-Muldowney district they would be looking for a different kind of fraud, the sort they would have to prove by bringing in individual witnesses.

FEAR VIOLENCE IN STRIKE

Fearing violence in the glaziers' strike which might result in injury to pedestrians in the downtown district, Supterintendent of Police Franklin T. McQuaide has instructed patrolmen to keep close watch at places where glass is being installed.

In an effort to break the strike, large glass companies of the Pittsburgh district have hired non-union men, according to union offisials. The union glaziers have started to deal direct with building contractors, setting glass for anyone who will pay $10.20 a day, according to H. S. Johnston, president of Local Union No. 251.

'DETECTOR CAR' MAKES SLOW JOURNEY

Runs Five Miles an Hour in Test of P.-L.E. Rails

Proceeding at a five-mile-an-hour clip, a Sperry rail detector car, one of 12 in the world, today was on its way back to Youngstown and to completion of a test of Pittsburgh and Lake Erie track between that city and Brownsville, Pa.

With two-thirds of the distance run, no transverse track fissures had been discovered, it was announced by R. P. Forsberg, chief engineer of the P and L. E. Railroad.

The detection of transverse fissures—fractures inside the rail which cannot be found by trackwalkers—was the chief purpose of the trip. The car marks the spot with a spray of oil, and rails found on closer examination to be defective are removed.

Burned spots, corrugated surfaces, split heads and the like are also recorded in the car by variations of an electric current forced through the rail.

The car belongs to the New York Central Railroad.

Women's Spirit a Drug, Stylist Antoine Says

Antoine, arbiter of feminine fashions throughout the world for the last 28 years, replied to the question of retirement:

"Each woman's spirit is different. It is my drug. The fascination of the creation of style, the perfection of character. I can never give up."

Fifty years old, but with the energy of a young artist in his face, Antoine, at the William Penn Hotel today, after six weeks in America, expressed his delight with the women of America:

"I am astonished at the elegance of your women in the small towns. They have a sort of timidity and modesty—part of the essence of charm."

Returning from Hollywood, where he collaborated with motion picture producers, Antoine was making what he called a circus tour of America.

Of famed American beauties, Antoine said:

"Their beauty is too commercialized. The beautiful woman thinks of only—how can I make money."

But that is changing, Antoine said, indicating a trend in fashions toward elegance and individualism.

Europe continues to be the style center of the world, according to Antoine. The light in Paris is wonderful for bringing out women's beauty, he says, while in New York it is terrible—too harsh and bright.

Antoine will appear in the Urban Room of the William Penn Hotel tonight. He remains here through Thursday, in connection with his shop at Horne's.

BARR ACCUSED OF FIRING AIDE, HIRING FOE

Charges that County Commissioner C. M. Barr dismissed from the county payroll one of his own ardent supporters because the employe had protested to the Commissioner against the hiring of old administration supporters, were made today by Samuel J. Dudley, former district chairman of the Square Deal party in Glassport.

Dudley said today that he was fired from his county laboring job because he and his son had protested by letter to Barr against the hiring of Harvy Schauffler, also of Glassport, who was an active worker for the late Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and later for W. D. Mansfield and David L. Lawrence in the Commissioners fight.

Dudley charged that Schauffler is at present working five days a week for the county and two days a week in the Clairton steel mill.

Attorney Cyrus A. Davis, who was chairman of the Barr-McGovern workers in Glassport, supported Dudley in the charges against Barr. He said:

"Dudley was one of the hardest workers Barr had in Glassport while this fellow Schauffler was out and out against Barr and also McGovern. If anyone is deserving of a job it is Dudley."

Barr admitted he had brought about Dudley's dismissal and said that Dudley had continually caused trouble among other county employes and that the letters sent by Dudley and his son to Barr were downright "outrageous."

Dudley worked as a laborer at the Christy Park plant of the road maintenance division and Schauffler is now working out of this district headquarters.

Bishop Adna W. Leonard will have charge of a communion service tonight.

Assignments of ministers will be handed down by the bishop Friday night.

BELLEVUE HAILS MUSICIANS

The Bellevue High School Orchestra, and trio, which won honors in the national competition for high school orchestras, at Elmhurst, Ill., were accorded a reception last night by friends, students and parents who met them at the Bellevue Station, on their return.

The orchestra, of 37 pieces, was awarded second place in the Class B group. They are members of the Junior Class.

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP.)—Men, here's a world's fair attraction that so far has received no attention.

Lifeguards at the Twelfth street bathing beach within the grounds are ladies. You may have your life saved by either a blonde or a brunette.

GIRLS FLY IN AIR DERBY HERE

Half a dozen airplanes, piloted by girl fliers, will circle over the Point and race above the downtown skyscrapers on July 1 in the "debutantes' beer derby," chief feature of the first day of the two-day air show that the 111th Infantry's Drum and Bugle Corps will stage at Bettis Field.

Two nationally-known Pittsburgh women pilots already are entered in the race. They are Helen Richey, of McKeesport, and Helen McCloskey, both of whom have been participants in a number of national events. The Hofbrau restaurant in the Diamond is sponsoring the "beer derby" and will award a $500 prize to the winner. The girl racers will be required to make spot landings at the finish at Bettis Field, the landing areas to be marked by huge replicas of beer bottles.

Stunt flying and parachute jumps will feature the air show.

COAL INDUSTRY AT WORK ON NEW CODE

Co-operative moves to lift the coal industry out of the doldrums that have held it for more than 10 years advanced today along three fronts, centering on the appointment of two Pittsburghers on a national "code" committee.

J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, and W. W. Keefer, of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, were named on the committee of 19 bituminous coal operators in Washington yesterday, according to word received here.

The committee, with R. Templeton Smith, vice president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, representing Morrow, is meeting today in the capital to plan for stabilization of the industry in cooperation with the administration's proposed industrial control bill.

Its discussions are expected to be reflected in two different coal group sessions to be held here this week.

A report of an engineers' committee appointed by a powerful group of high volatile coal operators to draft plans for a regional sales agency will be made within a day or two.

CONTROL PLANS

A second plan will be given added impetus by the second meeting of the newly formed Western Pennsylvania Coal Operators' Association, definitely launched last Thursday by a group of 47 independent operators. The basis of the association is to organize to carry out the provisions of the proposed industrial coal bill now being drafted in Washington, according to B. H. Canon, secretary.

The plans differ in that the sales agency would be independent of governmental control and would be upheld by a voluntary agreement of coal companies to maintain certain price standards and market their product through the organization, while the operators' association would be regulated by the government in setting up minimum wage scales for miners and other standards within the industry.

NO CONFLICT

Although the larger companies and the "captive coal" operators, such as steel companies which do not sell coal to the public, are represented in the sales agency group and not in the operators' association, there is no conflict between the two, accoroding to leaders in both undertakings.

C. H. Hosford, chairman of the Western Pennsylvania Coal Operators' Association, said there was no reason why the sales plan should not be incorporated in a general trade association arrangement.

Morrow, a leader in the sales agency plan, said today:

"There is no conflict between the association and our group. We have already assured Washington we are ready to cooperate on any reasonable plan."

"Of course it wouldn't have helped them if I had been there, because I was empty."

TRADITION AND FASHION ARE COMBINED IN RIDING CLOTHES

THE COMING months mean just endless formal and informal calendar riding events and for them there are three distinct types of riding clothes, three examples of which we've sketched.

THE YOUNG and slim equestrienne simply wouldn't give up jodpurs for any other type of riding clothes, as she has the one kind of figure that can wear them to advantage. Since she's riding completely informal, her entire habit may be linen, in her favorite shade. Yes, even such colors as soft grayed blue or green and maize, are acceptable this year, although white and string (from the natural to the darker hemp tones) remain ever faithful standbys.

OF THIS type the smartest habit contrasts sleeveless colored jacket with white or natural jodpurs, although if the cleaning possibilities appall, one can simply reverse the color scheme. Dark jodpurs with a light jacket are equally good, since fashion has licensed this reversal. The shirt is of broadcloth, and may be worn open at the throat, Clark Gable-style, if the urge is to go sporty in a big way, or the polka dotted tie, as illustrated, may be used instead. Jodpur boots are laced.

WOMEN WHO are older or a bit heavier should never wear jodpurs. Breeches prove better judgment for them and are less informal to boot. The smart rider on the right wears the traditional gabardine suit, long-sleeved, with broadcloth shirt and regulation solid tie of pastel shantung. The jacket may be either rust, redwood brown, dull blue, dull green, white or maize. . . the choice is just as varied as that. The coat is impeccably tailored, well fitted and snug at the waist. Breeches may match or contrast in color, but the rule of perfect fit is never subject to variation or change.

FOR THE hunting field, the formal habit makes its appearance. . . traditionaly perfect. In it a woman looks a bit mid-Victorian, but why not—since that's a point in fashion today. Coat and skirt match, and must be dark in tone. A white pique stock and stiff bowler hat complete this very correct picture.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(On board "The Chief," California bound.)

That after those six orphans saved that Erie train from sure wreck and the passengers from sure injury or worse, the passengers passed the hat among themselves (450 of them) and the sum collected was $32.61. Several gave a nickel and many not even that!

That the panhandling racket has reached the Indian kids, who nail you at Raton, New Mexico—and give you an argument, yet!

That Clara Bow rarely goes to the movies. No like 'em.

That the promotion dept. for "The Chief" sends word on ahead to all passenger agents informing them of "well known" fares. The agents tell the local paper and the towners come down to the depot to have peek and wave at you. (It's quite a compliment.)

That Chaplin's favorite fruit is herring.

That tho the lyric itself may make this statement appear silly, it's a fact that "Comin' Thru the Rye" does not refer to an encounter in a rye-field (always so pictorially illustrated), but refers to a river! The Rye River in Scotland. (100 to 1 I'm right again).

That you imagine gold is yellow. It's really ruby-red.

That New York kids will love me for this fact. If a school's temperature is but one degree below the standard set by the Health Dept.—then they may go home—without permission! (Who's your pal?)

That you can't be a cop in N. Y. if you have 19 natural teeth, or less. (Don't ask me why. They don't know why themselves!)

That Samuel Wordsworth seized his quill and wrote "The Old Oaken Bucket" immediately after tasting New York's water.

That the world's cleanest restaurant is said to be in Shanghai.

That among other ironies is that though William Watson in earlier days was mentioned as poet laureate-to-be of England, his last book sold only a few copies, every one of which was purchased—by his wife.

That a racehorse, after a mile run, has flown 1,320 feet!

That the world's largest book (in wordage) is Caine's "Life of Christ," a three-million worder. The Bible contains 773,693 words.

That M. Wright just ran for Orange County (N. J.) Supervisor on a platform calling for the abolition of that very job!

That in parts of Texas water costs more than gasoline. That in parts of Italy gasoline costs more than wine!

That Washington cracked jokes while crossing the Delaware and our highest paid comics are still using them.

That after the Civil War, Congress granted a pension to a man who had never seen the army. (He proved he intended to enlist).

That King George will learn here that he is legally entitled to receive two beaver skins annually from Pennsylvania.

That shortly after ex-postmaster Gen'l Brown bought that expensive limousine to fit his silk hat, the New York P. O. was ordered to "go easy" on office supplies in the interest of economy!

That the uniforms of New York's police will not pass inspection unless made by "approved tailors. (Catch on?)

That this will be denied, but it's true. New York chased the ambulance chasers off the city streets—so now they do business direct in the city's own hospital—Bellevue.

That a member of Congress who cheats on his wife may immediately, without quibble or evasion be removed from office. (Any bets?)

That the World's Fair bars hootchee-kootchee dancers, yet "Little Egypt," a torso tosser, made the last one famous!

That the Encyclopedia Britannica's brochure queries: "Do you know that golf originated in Holland?" (Sure. In fact when that item was first noted here years ago, it was belittled.)

That being on a transcontinental train for several days isolates you. After you leave Kansas City the newspapers are purely local and you depend on the typed sheet telegraphed to the observation car, a short list of headlines.

That the Gov't hounds firms lacking machine safety devices yet itself neglects to install such around those whirling gadgets found on the postoffice stamp-cancelling machines. (Howz about it, Jim?)

That Billy Wilkerson, owner of the Hollywood Reporter, flies between the coasts more often than any passenger. The only time in four years he took a train—he was in a wreck!

That Peggy Joyce is quoted as saying she doesn't wear orchids any more "because a columnist has cheapened them." This is the same Peggy who dedicated her book, "Men, Marriage and Me," to "My dear friend, Walter Winchell."

STARGAZING :-: Turning Filmoscope On Studios And Players of Hollywood :-: AMUSEMENTS

Boris Karloff Freed by Studio

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 6.—In an unexpected move, Universal has failed to exercise the option of Doris Karloff, whose makeup in "Frankenstein," "The Mummy" and other horror films have pointed to him as the logical successor to the late Lon Chaney.

Mr. Karloff

The release of Karloff makes Universal lose three major players within a few weeks. Tala Birell and Lew Ayres were the other two.

Since the salaries of all these players would have taken a jump with their next option, the move has obvious advantages in economy. Aside from that studio officials claim that the Laemmle Company now can concentrate on stories, casting them with the best available talent, instead of buying material to fit a group of expensive stars.

Universal now finds itself with only a slim list of contract players. Margaret Sullivan, June Knight, Paul Lukas, Andy Devine, Onslow Stevens, Tom Brown, Vince Barnett, Gloria Stuart, Slim Summerville, Zasu Pitts and Kenn Maynard about name them.

First result of Karloff's loss will be a search for an actor to take the role in H. G. Wells' "The Invisible Man."

Abe Lyman tells the story of the yes-man who told a certain Hollywood producer that he was a genius. The producer gestured impatiently.

"I'm better than that," he said, "I'm ingenious."

The Leslie Howard contract with Warners turns out to be for nine pictures instead of three. And if he stays out the whole term, he will receive a sizeable fortune for the last film.

Matinee-Idol Francis Lederer has hearts fluttering here as well as on Broadway. The young actor who'll work for R-K-O has taken a house in Beverly hills . . . Dolores and John Barrymore will take the two youngsters on their trip to Yosemite. They've had tiny sleeping bags prepared for the journey into the high Sierras. After the mountain vacation, Barrymore plans a cruise on his yacht to Alaska.

Miss Costello

They gave Abe Lyman a rousing greeting on his return to the Cocoanut Grove. Joan Crawford, Franchot Tone, Helen Hayes, Bob Abbott, Elizabeth Allan and Adrian were sitting at a ringside table. The Harold Lloyds were at another. Some others who joined the festivities were Jean Harlow, Johnny Weismuller, the Edward G. Robinsons, Barbara Barondess and Bill Rankin.

Young Bob Abbot, who took a movie test the other day, has decided to go back and work in the family textile mills in Boston. The test was very good, too.

According to present plans, Walter Winchell will be in Hollywood for several months, maybe until September. He'll do his column from here . . . It will be Sammy Lee and not Albertine Rasch who supervises the dancing in the new Joan Crawford picture. And the picture, incidentally, has been changed back to "The Dancing Lady."

Mr. Winchell

Bob Montgomery will be in it and Maybe Clark Gable . . . M-G-M's entire Eskimo family attends every feature that shows at a small Culver City theater. Sometimes, they see the film two or three times. Ed Perkins, writing from Nice, says that he recently visited the harem of the former Sultan of Turkey. Finding he was from Hollywood, the attendant blurted out:

"Is it true that Joan Crawford is divorcing Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.?"

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

It was about a year ago that it was announced Dick Powell was to go to Hollywood to get a chance in the movies. Dick then was an unknown outside of Pittsburgh, where he had alternated as master of ceremonies at the Stanley and Enright longer than anybody had held down a similar job in the local entertainment field. Now Dick is virtually a star of the vocal pictures, largely because of a pleasing personality, ability to sing to the satisfaction of most of us, and a stage presence that has the poise of a veteran showman. Recently Dick has been making a personal appearance tour that took him even onto Broadway. A year ago Broadway no doubt looked very far away to Dick. And the high place he has reached in the movies probably was just a dream.

James Dunn and Sally Eilers have become so well established as a co-starring team in the movies that it has been decided to use their names as the title of their sixth and next film, which will be called "Sally and Jimmy."

* * *

"The Pure in Heart," which was one of the Theater Guild's major misfortunes of last season, so much so that it never got to New York, has been rewritten by its author, John Howard Lawson, and will be presented in that city some time during the summer by the Group Theater, a ward of the Guild.

Summer Play Casting Is Going On

With important roles filled, casting continues for the Pittsburgh Summer Playhouse's production of Benn W. Levy's Broadway hit, "Springtime for Henry," week of June 26 in the Shady Side Academy Theater, Fox Chapel.

The title of a new play by Helen H. Mason, which is to be given its first presentation by the Summer Playhouse August 21, has been changed to "Three to Make Ready." S. N. Behrman's "The Second Man" will follow "Springtime for Henry," the week of July 10.

Roger Pryor of Stage Signs for Movie

Roger Pryor, who starred in the stage production of "Blessed Event," has been selected to play the male lead opposite Mary Brian in the screen musical comedy tentatively titled "Shoot the Works," which William Rowland and Monte Brice are making for Universal at the Astoria, Long Island, studios. "Shoot the Works," written by Rowland and Brice, also has Leo Carrillo in a featured character role. Brice and Karl Freund are co-directing the picture, with Bobby Connolly staging the dances.

NOW PLAYING
FULTON THEATRE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

"Even Unto Death—"

There were just three of us, and the proprietor. The band had gone home long ago, and the customers had left with the gaiety. Outside, Broadway was in semi-darkness. The street lights were dead, and it was too early for sunlight.

The four of us took turns telling stories which each of us had heard before. Sometimes the stories were funny; more often they weren't. A waiter was making a racket pushing tables back and forth on the other side of the club.

"He's new," said the boss. "We put him on after the Kaiser died. He's young, but—"

"Pardon me," I said. "I didn't know the Kaised died. When was this?"

The proprietor smiled tiredly.

"You got me wrong, Mark," he murmured. "I don't mean the real Kaiser. I mean the waiter we used to call by that name. You remember him. The old kraut with the puffed cheeks and the handlebar mustache? Sure you do. I've had him with me for years. One of the best waiters in the business. Well, he died last week, and this bird is taking his place on the late shift."

After that came the story . . .

The Kaiser's real name is unknown. It doesn't matter, anyway. But he was a prototype of the man who set the world aflame 19 years ago. He was straight and soldierly in appearance, and his gray mustache was shaped like a pair of rectangular brackets.

So far as I know, he was always a waiter. No one seems to know where he came from, or where he was headed. He merely appeared on Broadway some 10 years ago as a waiter, and was immediately nicknamed the Kaiser.

He never seemed to resent the name. As a matter of fact, he must have liked it to an extent. For, whenever anyone called him, he would square his shoulders automatically, tilt his chin, and click his heels together. When he spoke, which wasn't often, his words were clipped and curt. In all, he was the last word in militarism.

He would have made a swell movie usher. . . .

The Kaiser drifted from one club to another, working steadily and only changing when the clubs closed. Because of his extreme formality, he didn't mingle with the other waiters very much, and on Sunday mornings would leave the club and go to his little room in a West Forty-fifth street hotel.

What he did with his leisure hours I couldn't tell you. He was never known to go to any of the gay spots on his day off. In fact, as the proprietor says, "he was never known to take the rubber band off the roll."

Peculiar man, the Kaiser. I have a hunch that there's a much better story in him than I've got here. But whatever it is, it remained locked in his heart when death gave him the nod.

The club proprietor says that he first became ill in the kitchen of the club two weeks ago. The chief saw him lift a tray laden with food, stagger a few steps, and fall.

They carried him into the manager's office and summoned an ambulance. The young interne pulled his eyelid back, took his pulse and, after a little further examination, said that the Kaiser would have to be taken to the hospital immediately. Heart trouble.

Now, the proprietor is what is known as a right guy. He'll lend you money, see that you get home safe, act like a gentleman in front of your wife, and cut your brandy in half so that you won't get too cockeyed.

So, being a right guy, he told the interne to see that the Kaiser had the best of care, regardless of cost, and to send all bills to the club. Two days later, he went to the hospital in person, and asked the attending doctor what chance his waiter stood of ever getting out—alive.

The doctor asked him several questions before replying. He asked if the Kaiser had any relatives. The boss shrugged, and said he never heard of any.

"Well," said the doctor, "seeing that you're paying for his care here, I might as well tell you his chances. They're very little. He may las a minute; he may last a week. That's something we can't determine. He has endocarditis."

The proprietor didn't know what the word meant, but it sounded terrible. The doctor said that it was a serious heart ailment, and that very little could be done for the Kaiser, except to see that he was comfortable. The boss had a leaden feeling around his own heart when he left. . .

Then, four days later, he got a phone call from the hospital. It was from the doctor himself. The end, he said, was very near. Could the proprietor come right to the hospital? The Kaiser was conscious yet, and if the boss could come to the bedside, it might make the patient's last moments a little more cheerful.

The boss jumped into his clothes and a taxi in rapid succession. Within a half hour, he was walking across the slippery smooth corridors of the hospital. The nurse beckoned him into a little room, and there lay the Kaiser.

It would take no medical authority to tell that the man was dying. His face looked like a yellow, shadowy mask. His lips hung open and he gasped for breath. His eyes, wide open, stared at the ceiling.

The boss at down beside the bed. He spoke to the Kaiser, but the waiter didn't seem to hear at first. Then he turned his eyes toward his boss and stared at him for a moment. The barest flicker of a smile crossed his purple lips.

Then, whether it was the proprietor's presence, or the calm which is supposed to come before death is not known, but the Kaiser suddenly stopped gasping for a moment. A bony white hand reached out to the boss.

The visitor gulped.

"Kaiser," he murmured, "you're in a tough spot. I don't say this to make you feel worse, you know it yourself. The doc says there ain't any hope. And I'm kinda figuring that—well, before you go, maybe you'd like me to do something for you."

The patient smiled.

"Understand me," continued the boss. "I don't care what it is. You've worked hard for me. Now I'd like to do something in return. Is there anything—anything at all, you'd like me to do?"

The dying man tried to speak. The words gurgled in his throat. The boss leaned closer to hear them. His ear almost touched the Kaiser's lips. Still he couldn't understand.

The boss grew frantic. Here this man was dying, ready to go any minute, and he couldn't understand his final request. Beads of sweat broke out in the boss' forehead. He begged the man to try to speak louder before it was too late.

Finally the gurgling cleared. The words came haltingly, painfully.

"Last favor, boss . . . Please don't fail . . . Do it for me . . . Got good tip . . . Put five . . . on Billy M . . . in the fourth . . . at Jamaica" . . .

TOOK PILLS FOR 30 YEARS, THEN CEREAL BROUGHT RELIEF

Mr. Forsythe Endorses ALL-BRAN for Constipation

If you suffer from headaches, loss of appetite and energy or any other of the frequent effects of constipation, read this voluntary letter:

"After taking pills and tablets for about thirty years for constipation, I started to take your ALL-BRAN three times a day according to directions. Today I can eat cheese, and that is binding, and certainly feel fine."—Mr. Ed. Forsythe, Box 219, Youngstown, N. Y.

Science says ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. In addition, ALL-BRAN is rich in blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" far more healthful than using patent medicines—so often habit-forming?

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. In serious cases use with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

-"spring fever"

may not put you in bed

but if you feel

listless, tired, run-down, appetite dull, with a weak let-down feeling — perhaps nervous and worn out — why not "snap out" of this condition? Tone up your appetite, increase those red-blood-cells, and get in step with those who put zip and pep into everything they do — the best way to be happy and cheerful.

Colds, the "flu," or other illness, and poisons accumulated during the winter months, often diminish the number of red-blood-cells which are so vital in maintaining vigor, strength, and a clear skin.

There is a good old medicine, S.S.S.—tested both by time and by scientific research, which in addition to being a valuable general tonic, has been found to be remarkably efficient in restoring to the blood the normal amount of red-blood-cells and their hemo-glo-bin.

if you suspect

an organic disease, consult a physician. S.S.S. is not a "cure-all" BUT for that tired, worn-out, let-down feeling — "spring fever" just try S.S.S. and see how you awake after a night's sound sleep feeling fresh and fine, — and see how you eat with restored appetite.

Instead of slowing down in the early afternoon, you should possess ample energy to carry on thru the day and evening hours. Begin taking S.S.S. at once and build the new energy that you need. Ask anyone who has tried it.

do not have a rosy road in the winter — coughs, colds and children diseases — in and out of school — bravely fighting along with a wonderful spirit notwithstanding lost weight and strength. Loving care and nourishment do much, but if parents could only realize what a boost that good old-fashioned tonic, S.S.S. usually gives in such cases, they would not delay a single day in starting them back to robust health. Full directions on every bottle. If you have never used S.S.S. you should try it.

as a word of caution

to the millions who know S. S. S. and its benefits from personal experiences, we suggest that you do not permit anyone to switch you to any of the hundreds of "just as good as S. S. S." substitutes. HELLER, SMITH, O'LOUGHLIN LEAVE GAPS GRADUATION TOMORROW WILL deal a heavy blow to Pitt athletics, with 24 performers passing out after three years of varsity competition. There are three men on the list who will be missed in particular by the Pittsburgh sports public, as their names have been in the headlines ever since their matriculation. They are Warren Heller, all-America left halfback in football for 1932, and one of the greatest back ever turned out at the Oakland school; Don Smith, basketball player extraordinary and also an all-America selection, and William O'Loughlin, youngest of the famous O'Loughlins whose names head the honor roll in Panther tennis history.

Warren Heller

Because of the dearth of outstanding halfback talent at Pitt next fall, Heller probably will be missed the most sorely, for the Steelton ace, who will be coaching at Johnstown High School while Jock Sutherland is seeking a replacement for him, was about as valuable a man as ever donned a Pitt football uniform. But Dr. Carlson, too, will have to look around no little time before he finds a man to fill Smith's basketball shoes, and the decimated Pitt tennis team—it will be minus four of the 1933 players—would look kmuch better if O'Loughlin were to remain at the No. 1 post.

IN ADDITION TO the above, the men who have completed their Pitt athletic careers include Capt. Paul Reider, Joe Tormey, Paul Cuba, Ted Dailey, Melvin Brown and George Shindehutte, all football players; Francis Seigel, football and boxing; Art Sekay, golf captain and gridder; Rocco Cutri, football and basketball; Maurice Gurin, Gene Solow and Al Volmer, tennis veterans; John Reilly and Ray Logeswell, swimmers; George Gambateese and Harry Conti, boxers, and George Kerr, Jim Watkins and John Clise, track and cross-country.

The number of athletes donning cap and gown tomorrow will be augmented by Paul Collins, Dr. Jess Quatse and Mike Milligan, of the 1931 football team; Willie Kowallis, basketball captain in 1932; Capt. Ben Monheim and Woodford Harris, of the 1932 track squad, and Joe Orsini, coach of the Pitt boxers.

AMONG THE CLUB owners trying most desperately to make a deal before the lid goes down one week from Thursday is Clark Griffith. The Washington boss is scurrying around in American League circles endeavoring to swing a dicker for a high-class pitcher.

Griffith makes no secret of the fact that he is disappointed over the work of his Big Five as a whole. Alvin Crowder, Walter Stewart, Earl Whitehill, Monte Weaver and Alphonse Thomas have not delivered in the style expected. Of the first 33 games they started they finished only 13. Griff sees an urgent need for another top-notch flinger to keep the Senators in the pennant hunt.

STRANGELY ENOUGH, WHILE Griffith is beginning to waver, a man on another club in the same league sees the Senators as probable pennant winners. Muddy Ruel, veteran catcher with the Browns, and himself a former Senator, can't see the Yankees landing on top again. He says they have not the balance of a pennant-winning club, even though they have the hitting power. "The Senators go along winning steadily without the use of any prize athletes and in spite of the fact that their pitching never has been at its peak," Ruel says. "I have seen them all, and I think the Senators look a shade better than the Yankees, who have nothing more than power on which to crash through. The American League has no outstanding club, as in the past. There is strong opposition all along the line. The race ought to be a good one, with the Washington club's steadiness carrying it through to success."

Chick Fullis

ANOTHER DEAL TURNING out in a way to show again that you can't always tell about baseball trades is that in which the Phillies got Chick Fullis in the Freddie Lindstrom three-cornered exchange. The Quakers obtained Fullis from the Giants and Gus Dugas from Pittsburgh, with a fat bankroll on the side, for letting George Davis go to New York.

The average outsider couldn't picture Fullis filling the shoes of Davis. Chick was a good fielder, it was admitted, but he had not become a regular in five seasons with the Giants and it was hard to figure him as comparing with the center fielder the Phils had let go. Up to the end of spring practice even Manager Shotton wasn't sure that Fullis would be a regular.

BUT THE FORMER Giant has been one of the big surprises of the major league season. It had been expected that he would do well in the field, as he always has been a fast and classy gardener, but no one had looked for him to come through so strongly as a hitter.

Fullis is batting .322 up to date and is only one below Klein for the leadership of the National League in basehits. He has outbatted Davis by 61 points, Lindstrom by 59, and all around has been one of the most valuable outfielders in the loop so far. It isn't the fault of Fullis that the Phils are not higher in the standing of the clubs.

BILL BONTHRON, the Princeton speeder, who won both the 800 and 1,500-meter races in this year's I. C. 4-A meet, is one of the most powerful runners that college track in this country has known. Bonthron is the iron man of the present day in college running. Far from being tired after he had won his second race in the recent meet, he sprinted back to the starting point to get his sweat suit. Coach Geis relates that in the Princeton-Yale meet Bonthron asked permission to run in the middle-distance race after winning the distance event. Geis refused at first, but finally consented, and Bonthron won the second race and the meet. But that's only part of the story. Bonthron later went out with the baseball squad and wore out three fungo hitters shagging flies, and it's surely harder to shag them than to hit them. Then, before calling it a day, he played three sets of tennis.

SINCE HE STOPPED Young Corbett so quickly to win the welterweight championship, on top of his other punching feats, Jimmy McLarnin is being called a sort of heavier Terry McGovern as a walloper. The description hardly fits as to style, however. McGovern was far more tornadic, wading in furiously and throwing caution to the winds. McLarnin is crafty and cunning, and waits for an opening.

It is conceded that there have been few harder or more accurate punchers than McLarnin. But old-timers say they would not class him with such welter champions of the past as Joe Walcott or Tommy Ryan. They doubt, too, that he could have whipped such masters of boxing as Jack Britton and Ted Lewis, or outslugged Mickey Walker.

WHEN FOOTBALL COACHES who have served at one college for more than 10 seasons are being discussed, Joe Meyer must not be overlooked. Meyer, who played at Notre Dame in the long ago, has been coaching at Xavier in Cincinnati for 14 years, and his team draws as many at a single game now as it did in an entire season when he started.

Wilmer Allison

Meyer's work at Xavier is not confined to football, as he also coaches the baseball and basketball teams. And there was a time, when in addition to his coaching duties, he reported the school sports for three Cincinnati newspapers.

FEARS THAT AMERICA'S Davis Cup team will again be over-tennised if it reaches the challenge round against France are groundless, according to Wilmer Allison, who is to share the singles burden with Ellsworth Vines. Allison himself is going to Canada for two weeks to play golf and forget tennis, leaving all of his racquets behind. Others will be equally cautious, he reports. Vines and Keith Gledhill will play at Wimbledon, but the rest of the team will not sail until around the first of July. Allison does not agree with Bill Tilden that in all cases work and more work makes a great tennis player. He thinks training must be made to fit the man. "Tilden could play day and night," he says. "It appeared never to tire him. But not every one can do that. Vines can put away heavy duty on the courts, but he is in grand shape right now and won't overdo things, you can bet. With Vines and Gledhill playing at Wimbledon, the rest of us will sail straight into the interzone final."

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP.)—Wee Bobby Cruickshank carefully scanned the brilliant National Open golf championship field for 1933, reflected for a minute and then picked his man, the "unknown stranger." He said:

"It's just the time and the spot for some unknown this year in the Open. Yes, I know Sarazen will be there. So will Hagen, Mac Smith, Von Elm and a great field, but I've got a hunch that somebody we don't know is going to pop right in with a 72-hole total around 290 and take it all, and maybe, it'd be a good thing for the show."

CIUCI GETS 70

Henry Ciuci, Flushing (L. I.) professional, went over the North Shore Country Club layout, where the Open championship tournament will be decided, in 37-33—70, two under par, for the best of yesterday's sample rounds.

Ciuci played from the back tees, and his 33 on the home nine holes was the best performance of the past 10 days. Billy Burke scored a par 72, while Denny Shute, Johnny Goodman, Johnny Farrell, Phil Perkins, Leo Diegel and Don Armstrong, the latter an amateur from Aurora, Ill., carded 73s.

Four others, Joe Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y.; Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y.; Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., and Al Espinosa, of Akron, O., toured the course in 74 strokes. Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., and Frank Walsh, of Chicago, had 75s, and Cyril Walker, of New York, and George Smith, of Chicago, required one more stroke.

The defending titleholder, Gene Sarazen, played nine holes in a very experimental manner and got a 38.

Local Sportsmen Form New Group

A new branch of the Allegheny County Sportsmen's League, known as the Hill Top Sportsmen's Association, has been organized with Albert C. Storch as President; Harry W. Hartman, as vice president; Earl R. McGraw as treasurer, and James J. Martin as secretary.

The new association is to hold a meeting in the immediate future, at which motion pictures of wild life will be shown. Sportsmen interested in hunting and fishing wishing to become affiliated with the new group, should communicate with Secretary Martin at 39 Cedricton street, Carrick.

Believe It Or Not By Ripley

(Reg. by U. S. Patent Office)

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE SEA OF SODA—The wonderful Lake Magadi, consisting of pure soda in crystalline form, is situated between the monster extinct volcano Kilimanjaro and the escarpment forming the boundary of the great plateau. The lake is 16 miles long and eight miles wide and is fed by waters carrying the soda in solution. The glare of the sun continuously evaporates the water, causing the soda to settle. The deposit increases faster than it can be removed, commercially. From an eminence, I beheld with astonishment the glistening expanse of this lake, looking for all the world like an icebound sea on the equator. THE BARBER SPIDER—This curious "spider," which belongs to the order of Solifugae, family of Solpugidae, bears a strong superficial resemblance to a spider, with which it has been falsely classified. It is a native of South Africa, where it is called Haarskeerder (Hair Shaver), for its ability to shave patches of hair from the heads of sleepers. The operation is performed so gently that the sleeper is entirely unaware of it. The feelers of this curious arachnid produce a bluish phosphorescent light upon contact with an object.

Headed by the Dormont-Homewood tussle at Homewood, three games in the City League draw the attention of the fans this evening. Dormont will feel the lash of Co-managers Fuchs and Falconer in this game following that listless play at Wilson Avenue Field last night against the Cochrans.

Everything that Dormont did last night for the greater part of the game went wrong. Tice dropped a fly ball, and Trappe kicked one around and the Ottie Cochran boys collected seven runs in one big inning. Elmer Knetzer had to be called from the bull pen to retire the side.

Rhiny Kress injured his knee in the frame, which did not help the Dormont cause.

The Dormonters eventually won out, 11 to 10, but failed to look very impressive in victory.

In the other contests in the league this evening, J. L. Thomas meets Whitaker at Dean Field and the Books battle the Gillespies at Brentwood. The Thomas nine has shifted its home grounds back to Dean Field after having tried Greenlee Field.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Harold (Pie) Traynor was talking about the present plight of the Pirates . . . Isn't surprised that they're in a slump, but thinks they'll snap out of it . . . Says this talk about the strain of being in first place is the bunk, and that he'd rather be carrying a lead of a game or two than be that far out of first place . . . "When you're up there, you're sitting on top, and when you aren't you're just another team in the race," he says . . . That's Pie all over . . . He likes to win and he's not satisfied to be anything but the best.

The talk turned to Al Simmons, the blasting slugger of the Chicago White Sox and formerly of the Philadelphia Athletics . . . Pie says he understands Al has the most pliable, or quickest responding, batting muscles of any player in the major leagues . . . He can be fooled by the pitcher and yet recover in time to get hold of the ball for a solid hit . . . It's all in his ability to adapt himself and turn a false move into a positive, decisive one.

"Speaking of automobile racing drivers being fatalists, as you were in your column the other day," writes Howard Mayberry, of the East End, "perhaps you'll be interested in looking over the enclosed letter from Bill (Speed) Gardner, the local racer, who cracked up trying to qualify at Indianapolis . . . He writes from the Indianapolis City Hospital, where he'll be for a long time . . . Bill always was a fatalist and a happy-go-lucky fellow living in the present and willing to let the future take care of itself."

Speed Gardner

The letter says: . . . "My injuries were a little more serious than the papers stated . . . My left leg is broken above the knee and the back of my head and my entire back are skinned, as I skidded 75 yards backward when I left the car . . . I guess I was lucky, at that, as they say I just missed a concrete wall by six inches and went under a rail fence . . . We had the car running nicely and were qualifying at around 115 miles an hour when a car spilled oil on the track and a slow-moving car in front of me just missed trouble . . . This driver had reported the oil to the starter, who was going to flag me down, but I was only a half-mile away and he didn't have a chance . . . The doctor just told me a friend of mine died today (May 28) . . . They've had two other wrecks in the same spot . . . I'll be here about eight more weeks, so write to me again."

The two laziest main bout fighters that have appeared here recently are Alabama Kid and Tracey Cox . . . Both fight in one or two flashes of a few seconds' duration each round, and it is about time the promoters took a tumble to themselves and laid them off and gave performers who are willing to work inside the ring a chance . . . Both Cox and Alabama are punchers, and, if they don't take their man with one of their flurries, they subside until the next round, which provides a minimum of action for the fans.

Art Rooney is having difficulty signing players for his local team in the National Professional Football League next fall . . . He had his eyes on some stars, but all of them are signed to other clubs in the circuit . . . As a result, he may have to recruit his forces from the ranks of the recent local college stars for his first season and get to work a little earlier on his second year's team . . . Boxing lost one of its honest men, and there are all too few of them, in the death of Bill Muldoon . . . No finer epitaph could be written for any man in this game of sharp practices.—HARRY KECK.

GOLF CONFERENCE

Peabody	12	Allderdice	6

Latimer and Gladstone were clashing at Gladstone this afternoon in the first of a three-game series to determine the junior high school baseball championship. The same teams meet in the second game at Fineview Friday.

Schenley and Westinghouse were playing off a postponed game in the senior league at Westinghouse this afternoon. They meet again Friday on the Schenley field.

Oliver and South Hills play off a postponed game at Oliver Thursday.

The Peabody and Turtle Creek High School golf teams were clashing this afternoon over the Alcoma Country Club links for the runner-up honors for 1933 in the Interscholastic Golf Conference.

Turtle Creek lost to Kiski in the championship playoff match for the Conference title, while Peabody, after a two-match series, won the city title and the right to battle Turtle Creek for runner-up honors.

Peabody won the third and deciding match of the series with Taylor Allderdice yesterday at Shannopin, 12 to 6. The first match ended in a 9-9 deadlock last week.

Connelley defeated Oliver, 5½ to 3½, in the final Conference duel of the season yesterday at Thornburg.

Trinity High, of Washington, and Edgewood will battle for the W. P. I. A. L. baseball championship at Forbes Field tomorrow evening. The winner succeeds Carnegie High as champion.

The eighth grade school track and field championship will be decided on Thursday at Schenley High field.

JACOBS ADVANCES

BALTIMORE, June 6.—(AP.)—Eddie Jacobs advanced to the second round of the Maryland state tennis championship here yesterday as a result of a default by his opponent.

INDOOR CLUB THROUGH ON THURSDAY

The Vince Dundee-Frankie Goosby show in the Arena on the North Side tomorrow night will mark the closing of that fistic spot until next fall, it developed today.

The Arena will merge with the North Braddock Bowl and will stage its shows there for the summer, beginning next week.

Jules Beck, of the Bowl, will be retained as matchmaker, which leaves Lew Raymound out in the cold, after he recently refused to throw over the Arena to join a promotion plan at Greenlee Field.

However Raymond is not worrying. With the passing of the Arena, Greenlee Field may come into the fold again, and, if it doesn't, there is a good chance that Raymond will hook up with John Hernon at Hickey Park for the remainder of the summer.

Joe Mazer and Charley Nowe will run the Bowl and will move into the Arena in the fall. This is taken to mean that Mazer will not be back at Motor Square Garden, where he has been promoting for some years, and Hernon, former general manager there, may be invited to take over the plant and make a go of it, in which event he can't do any better than to retain the very efficient Raymond as his matchmaker.

Announcement was made by the Boxing Commission today that the impracticable five-day rule on main bout substitutes is out like a light effective immediately. Henceforth, substitutions will be permitted so long as it is possible to advise the public in advance of a show. The five-day rule on original bout contracts stands, however.

Germany Offers Games Compromise

VIENNA, June 6.—(INS.)—Germany today offered a compromise before the International Olympic Committee in an effort to meet mounting opposition to having the next Olympic Games held in Berlin in 1936 if there is any discrimination against Jews.

The German government, it was learned, agreed to permit former State Secretary Lewald to function as head of the German Olympic Committee and to direct the games in that capacity. Germany was reported planning to oust Lewald on the grounds he is of Jewish origin.

Stansbury May Lose W.Va. Post

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., June 6.—(AP.)—The West Virginia University Alumni Association is deadlocked in a fight over changing the system of directing athletics.

A resolution favoring a graduate manager for sports resulted in a 42-42 tie vote. If adopted, the resolution would oust H. A. Stansbury, who is not a West Virginia graduate.

Judge Lewis Miller, of Ripley, was elected president of the association.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—Say, Lefty Grove has been in the bullpen so often this season he might as well have a ring in his nose. It seems to be Connie Mack's strategy to let his other pitchers get into a nice, deep hole and then summon Lefty with his donkey engine, derrick and block and tackle and pull them out. And no wonder Grove is pitching in mid-season form. He's warmed up so many time this season he is already 107 degrees in the shade, with dog days two months away.

Nick Altrock

For the first five or six innings of a ball game, the A's are liable to look more like Z's. Then Connie waves his magic wand at the bullpen and Prince Charming bobs up in the pitcher's box and proceeds to slay the dragon or ogre or whatever "bad mans" is threatening the Philadelphia club.

It's the first time in years a major league club has forged its way into a pennant race on the old fairy tale theme.

LEFTY GROVE THRIVES ON IRON MAN DUTY

SOUTHPAW ACE KEEPS A'S IN FLAG RACE

Associated Press.

On Bob Grove's thin shoulders rest almost the entire burden of keeping the Philadelphia Athletics in the American League pennant race, but the crack southpaw seems to be thriving on work.

An apparent "throw back" to such baseball iron men as Ed Walsh and Joe McGinnity, the lanky ace of Connie Mack's disappointing pitching staff took the mound yesterday for the tenth time in 17 days, scattered Washington's 10 hits as the A's won, 7-4, and hung up his fifth successive victory in that short space of time.

FIFTH WIN IN ROW

Called off the relief pitching job that put his name in the A's box score nine times in 11 contests, Grove, starting a game for the first time since May 6, had no worries after his teammates solved Al Crowder for five runs in the third inning.

And just to make it complete he contributed a home run and single to the A's 14-hit assault. Fred Schulte's double and home run accounted for three of the Senators' tallies.

YANKS SIGN WHITE

NEW YORK, June 6.—(INS.)—The New York Yankees had continued their collegiate complex today by signing the year's outstanding college pitcher, Ray White, of Columbia, alma mammy of Lou Gehrig. White will report today, but will be farmed out this week to the Binghamton club in the New York-Pennsylvania League.

DUKES' TENNIS VETS ENGAGE ALUMNI

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Capt. Frank Casey and Cliff Soisson were making final appearances as varsity tennisers on the Bluff asphalt this afternoon as the Duke net squad battled a pcked Hill graduate crew as sport feature of the annual Duquesne Alumni Day festivities.

Later in the day, at University Club, Stanton Heights and the U. C. outfit were to play off a singles and doubles postponement still left from their P. T. A. Inter-Club League match originally billed for May 27, while College Avenue Seconds and Westinghouse Seconds conclude part of a dual tilt remaining from the same date.

The Duke old-timers' array will include Billy O'Loughlin, former prep leader; Austin Famariss, Sam Keller, Father Jake Olko, of Leechburg; Pete Collodi, Paul Sullivan and several others. The varsity contingent entered the fray minus Frank Serany, No. 1 ace, who returned home to Hazelton immediately after examinations.

Beside the tennis action, mushball, handball and baseball competition is on the diversified program.

A heavy court card is listed for tomorrow and Thursday evening, with Shannopin invading P. A. A. and Rockwood visiting Westinghouse to care for Inter-Club loop affairs set back by the May 27 washout.

Chairman George Henderson of the pre-tournament doubles event slated for Stanton Heights next Sunday announces likelihood of large entry list for the get-together. Entries may be mailed to Henderson in care of the Stanton Heights Golf Club.

Both Westinghouse teams turned in victories last evening, the Section I team defeating College Avenue, 7 to 2, and the Westinghouse Seconds downing College Avenue Seconds, 7 to 1. The summary:

Kilmeyer Victor In Cue Tourney

Pete Kilmeyer won the annual city three-cushion billiard championship, defeating Davisson in the final match of the tourney at Tobin's parlors, Smithfield street, last night, 50 to 47.

Marty Welk, Dale Campbell, the defending champion, and Watson finished in a three-way tie for third place.

MULDOON LAID TO REST AS 'TAPS' SOUND

PURCHASE, N. Y., June 6.—(INS.)—William Muldoon, veteran boxing commissioner, was buried today in Kensico Cemetery with military honors, after a brief religious service at his home here.

About 100 persons attended the rites, including John F. Curry, Bernard Gimbel, Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Jack Sharkey, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, Gunboat Smith, Tim Mara, sports promoter; Arthur Donovan, fight referee; Gen. John J. Phelan and Dan H. Skilling, of the State Boxing Commission; Jack Curley, promoter, and Col. William Costigan, of the old 69th Regiment.

The Rev. Emmett F. Rogers, pastor of the Roman Catholic Church of the Immaculate Conception, Tomkins Cove, N. Y., read prayers for the dead in the gymnasium on the estate where the body lay. Miss Margaret Farrell Muldoon, the dead man's adopted daughter, knelt near the coffin. She was the only relative present.

At the cemetery the G. A. R. burial ritual was read by Commander G. Smith, of the Amex Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, acting for the Cromwell Post of the Grand Army of the Republic. Taps were sounded and a squad of eight fired a volley as the body was placed in a mausoleum. Muldoon was a Civil War veteran.

SCHMELING REMAINS CHOICE TO BEAT BAER

FIGHT DETAILS KEEP DEMPSEY ON THE GO

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—Trained to the minute, Max Baer and Max Schmeling can afford to take things easy until they square off for their 15-round heavyweight duel in the Yankee Stadium Thursday night, but there was no rest in sight for Promoter Jack Dempsey.

There's no doubt Jack has worked harder the last couple of months in his new role than he ever did when he was getting ready to defend his heavyweight championship a few years ago and the end had not yet come today.

SUCCESS LOOMS

Financially the bout seemed certain of success, but there were a thousand and one details to be ironed out before Dempsey could breath a sigh of relief and let the show go on.

The major task confronting him was the converting of the stadium into a fight arena. As soon as the New York Yankees completed their double-header with Boston today, Dempsey planned to move in a small army of workmen to set up the ring and arrange the seats. Once that's done to his satisfaction, all he'll need to worry about is the weather.

Tentatively at least, Dempsey has been promised fine weather. James H. Scarr, head of the New York Weather Bureau, says Thursday "probably will be fair."

WAGERING LIGHT

If it is, indications were a crowd of close to 60,00 would pour into the stadium for the match. Dempsey said yesterday he had $100,000 cash in hand and another $50,000 in reservations. The expected last-minute rush for tickets was expected to send the receipts to $300,000.

Betting on the bout has been very light, with Schmeling a steady 2-to-1 choice.

'In Shape'—Baer

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 6.—(INS.)—For the first time in his life Max Baer, California's gift to the fight game, today put the stamp of self approval on his own physical condition. He said:

"I can really say for the first time that I'm in great condition. I never was in such fine shape even for those 20-round fights I had out West. Then I knew I was kidding the public as well as my opponent, but I wasn't kidding myself then and I'm not fooling anybody now. I'm ready to make the fight of my life."

Baer will limber up today and leave tomorrow for his hideout in New York, where he will remain in seclusion until he meets Max Schmeling at the weighing-in Thursday afternoon.

GERMAN ENDS GRIND

LAKE SWANNANOA, N. J., June 6.—(INS.)—Max Schmeling will finish training for his 15-round bout with Max Baer at the Yankee Stadium Thursday night in his outdoor arena here this afternoon. The former champion will box two rounds with Tommy DeStefano and two more with the robust Lou Barba.

When he takes off his gloves after mixing with Barba he will have completed more than five weeks of training for what he considers one of his most important fights in this country. There is not a mark either on his Dempsey-like face or his body. His sparring partners have been able to hit him only a couple of times on the jaw in all of the workouts here.

He weighed 190 pounds yesterday after playing one set of tennis.

Dundee Gets Dempsey's Okay

MANAGER MAX WAXMAN VINCE DUNDEE JACK DEMPSEY

The one and only Jack Dempsey visits Vince Dundee in his training quarters in New Jersey to give him the once-over as he prepares for his fight with Frankie Goosby at the Arena here Thursday night. He put his okay on the uncrowned middleweight champion's condition and is seen wishing him luck in the engagement. Dundee will arrive here tomorrow, and, with his manager, will be a guest speaker on the radio program of the Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph at 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

WOMEN PLAY AT LONGUE VUE

By TOM BIRKS

One of the largest fields ever to compete in a Western Pennsylvania women's one-day tournament is battling over the links of the Longue Vue Country Club today. The ladies have been playing since early morn, and it will be late this afternoon before the last competitor gets under way.

The Longue Vue layout, with its rolling fairways, many of them overlooking the Allegheny River, is in wonderful condition, and it is quite possible that the low handicap players will turn in some real good scores.

The Oakmont No. 1 team, composed of Mrs. Sara Fownes Wadsworth and Betty Abernathy, is expected to lead the first division players home. In the Allegheny Country Club tourney, both broke 90, Nancy Byers being the only other player to turn in this feat so early in the season.

At Highland today, the Hotel Club and Restaurant Men's Association is holding its third golf get-together of the season.

Nemacolin Country Club will hold open house tomorrow.

The Allegheny Country Club will have its men's invitation tourney on Friday and Saturday, with the women's invitation tourney scheduled for the following Friday and Saturday.

Mike Swisdak, of Edgewood Country Club, won the inaugural tournament of the Assistant Professionals' and Caddie Masters' Association, played over the Pittsburgh Country Club layout yesterday. Swisdak had a card of 36-40—76. Ed Fentzel, of Oakmont, and Andy Brannigan, of Churchill Valley, tied for second honors, each with a 77.

The kickers' handicap was won by S. Benick, of Castle Shannon, with a 77.

Fight Results

At Hickey Park, Millvale—Jackie Wilson won by technical knockout over Tommy Paul, 8 rounds; Tony Marino won referee's decision over Johnny Perrini, 10 rounds; Jimmy Gilligan won referee's decision over Sammy Paris, 6 rounds; Shorty Washko won by technical knockout over Teddy Mancuso, 5 rounds.

At Louisville—Eddie Shea knocked out Joe Rivers, 3 rounds; Marshall Edwards defeated Paul Lee, 8 rounds.

At Stevens Point, Wis.—Mike Dundee defeated Johnny Early, 8 rounds; Al Salbano defeated Irish Kennedy, 6 rounds.

At Miami—Jose Estrada declared winner of 10-round bout with Texas Kid, when the latter was disqualified for rough tactics and refusal to fight in tenth round.

At Rensselaer, N. Y.—Bep Van Klaveren defeated Herman Perhck, 10 rounds; Tony Look and Joe Rossi drew, 8 rounds.

At Terra Haute—Tiger Jack Fox knocked out Joe Doktor, 3 rounds; Bud Creed knocked out Chick Liberis, 2 rounds.

At Toledo, O.—Kayo Morgan defeated Johnny Mitchell, 10 rounds; Chuck Woods defeated Steve Shea, 6 rounds.

At Newark, N. J.—Stanley Poreda-Les Kennedy bout postponed until tonight, threatening weather.

GOOSBY EYES PARIS TRIP

There is more than just a fight in the back of Frankie Goosby's mind as he prepares for his battle with Vince Dundee, the uncrowned middleweight champion, at the Arena, on the North Side, Thursday night.

He sees ahead of a victory over Dundee a bout with Ben Jeby in New York Madison Square Garden's Bowl on Long Island for the world middleweight title and after that a match in Paris with Marcel Thil, the European champion.

Both Goosby and his manager, Cherokee Tom Cox, have been dreaming for months of an European trip. Both Al Brown, the bantamweight champion, and Gorilla Jones, former N. B. A. middleweight champion, Negro boxers, have prospered in bouts in France and they have told Frankie and his pilot the former should go over well in Europe with his clever boxing style and punch.

The going has been hard here for Goosby, with bouts few and far between and small purses, but he believes his big opportunity is at hand and he has been training with a determination not to muff it when he meets Dundee.

Between Rounds

Bill Simendinger claims he now has the welterweight champion of Pittsburgh in Tiger Joe Randall, who defeated Billy Holt, the only other contender, with Jimmy Belmont inactive and Ted Yarosz now campaigning among the middleweights.

Matchmaker Lew Raymond and Manager Luke Carney, who knew Postmaster General Jim Farley well when the latter was boxing commissioner of New York State, were warmly greeted by the latter when he visited Pittsburgh last Saturday. He invited them to drop in and see him if they come to Washington.

Curley Grieves and Pat Frayne, San Francisco sports scribes, on their way to the Schmeling-Baer fight in New York, dropped in to visit Lew Raymond, and reported the Coast solid for Baer to win. They also said they believed Jimmy McLarnin's one-round knockout victory over Young Corbett last week was a fluke and predicted Corbett would win in a return bout.

Grieves and Frayne inquired about Ted Yarosz and his amazing record and said the Coast was hot to see him and he could pick up a lot of money out there. Ted plans to visit California in the fall. Right now he is beset with offers to box Vince Dundee in Newark, N. J., Jack King at Little Rock and Billy Petrolle in Columbus, O., and has a bout on with Sammy Slaughter in Cleveland's Stadium on June 15.

Leave it to Lew Raymond to go any other matchmaker one better. Jack Dempsey has Max Baer and Max Schmeling boxing for him in New York, Thursday night, so Raymond has three Maxes on his card at the Arena the same night, Max O'Connor against Red Bruce, Max Eiling against Joey Bazzone and Manager Max Waxman in Vince Dundee's corner against Frankie Goosby.

Patsy Severo will box Harry Weekly and Tiger Roy Smith will meet Anson Green in eight-round preliminaries to the Tommy Freeman-Alabama Kid winding at Hickey Park next Monday night. There will be two six-round preliminaries.

Nat Lifton's scheduled bout with Charley Burns at Johnstown on June 15 has been postponed because of the fact that the Johnstown club, of the Middle-Atlantic League, has taken over the Point Stadium, where it was to be held, for night games. Promoter Cooney Martin, of Johnstown, also is working on a Sammy Mandell-Mickey Duris feature.

Al Susseri, local lightweight, may appear in one of the six-rounders at Hickey Park next Monday night.

The Tug Phillips-Bucky Lawless bout originally scheduled for last night in Youngstown, has been set back to June 19. Joey Marcus and Jackie Davis will meet on the same card.

CHAGNON FACES CUBS TODAY

WRIGLEY FIELD, CHICAGO, June 6.—The Pirates and Cubs resumed diamond hostilities this afternoon in a single contest. The two clubs divided a doubleheader Sunday afternoon before 27,000 fans and then rested yesterday.

Leon Chagnon, young right-hander of the Pittsburgh hurling staff, who has been used frequently in the relief role by the Buccos this season, started his first contest of the year. Charley Root was due to oppose Chagnon.

The series will be concluded tomorrow afternoon with a single game. The Pirates will open a three-game series with the Reds Thursday at Forbes Field. 'Honus Wagner Day" will be observed Friday.

INJURED EYE COSTS PAUL VICTORY

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

The breaks of the game gave Jackie Wilson, local Negro featherweight boxer, his second victory over Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, former N. B. A. featherweight champion, in the main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night.

This after Paul had been winning all of the way for seven rounds, hooking and uppercutting his way to a big lead.

As the seventh round ended, a patch was knocked off an old cut over Paul's left eye and a new cut followed almost immediately and began to bleed badly. His seconds were unsuccessful in stemming the flow, and, after 1 minute 12 seconds of the following round, the referee, Red Robinson, stopped the bout.

EYE BADLY CUT

Dr. McMeans, the Commission physician, took two stitches in the cut after the bout. The eye was almost closed when the end came, having begun to swell in an early round. Wilson meanwhile was bleeding from the right ear.

There was nothing to the fight but Paul until his injury beset him. He went right after Wilson and fought rather than boxed him, and landed solidly with both fists round after round. His rights to the heart and stomach bothered Jackie most. One of his punches knocked Wilson off balance for no count at the start of the third round and another landed low as this session ended.

Paul, who lost a close decision to Wilson in their first meeting, at Motor Square Garden, weighed 125½ pounds and Wilson 124½. The main bout was put on after the first preliminary because of a threat of rain.

TONY MARINO WINS

In the other 10-rounder, Tony Marino, of Duquesne, won the referee's decision over Johnny Perrini, of Buffalo, in a hard-fought battle in which he was the aggressor most of the way. He weighed only 114¾ pounds and gave away five pounds to his opponent.

Jimmy Gilligan, of Lawrenceville, won the referee's decision over Sammy Paris, of the Hill, in the second six-rounder, the best bout of the night for action, and Shorty Washko, Duquesne bantamweight, scored a technical knockout victory over Teddy Mancuso, of Connellsville, in the fifth round, the latter's seconds tossing in the towel after he had been floored twice for no count and once for nine.

GRAPHIC GOLF

PLAYING A CHIP SHOT FROM SAND TRAP

Expert golfers seem agreed that the simple appearing chip shot from a shallow bunker is one of the most dangerous of recovery play. Extreme accuracy is needed to hit the ball before the clubhead comes into contact with the sand.

A semi-upright swing is best for this shot, using a club with more loft than usually would be required for an ordinary chip shot. Naturally the greatest danger lies in the fact that the clubhead will contact the sand first and ruin the effort entirely.

For this reason, many golfers have found it helpful to look at the sand in front of the ball or even to hit the ball at little higher up than customary. With the latter method extreme care must be taken, for if the stroke happens to be particularly upright there is a chance the ball may be hit down into the sand.

In the illustration of Bobby Jones above, the clubhead apparently has been swung out from the ball, a process which aids the snap of the wrists and insures a quickly-rising trajectory.

FRENCH TENNIS PRIDE DEALT HARD BLOW

PARIS, June 6.—(INS.)—Capture of the French hard court championships by aliens was seen today as marking the decline of France as the dominant figure in international tennis.

The victory of Jack Crawford, Australian champion, over Henri Cochet, of France, defending titleholder in the men's singles yesterday marked the first time in history that the title has gone to an alien. It also lowered the prestige of France's Davis Cup team.

The British Empire won four of the five titles at stake. The chief upset was the victory of Margaret Scriven over Mme. Rene Mathieu, first ranking woman player of France, in the final of the women's singles.

Crawford handed Cochet a crushing defeat, 8-6, 6-1, 6-3.

STOCKS FALL BACK UNDER SELLING

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—Diverse influences pervaded the stock market today and prices turned somewhat ragged after early moderate strength in most departments.

While steel shares and several specialties maintained a steady to firm position, action of the Santa Fe directors in cutting the road's preferred dividend to $1.50 from the previous paid semi-annual rate of $2.50 brought some selling in the carrier list. This was the first time since the reorganization of the Santa Fe, more than 30 years ago, that its preferred dividend had been reduced.

Commodities were moderately irregular, with intermittent realizing in wheat following cooler weather forecasts for the West and Southwest. Corn was slightly easier. Bar silver was up fractionally and copper held steady. Cotton eased slightly.

The action of the House in adding a last-minute amendment to the Rayburn rail bill which would permit the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve consolidations of telegraph and cable companies again directed attention to recent rumors of a Western Union-Postal merger. Officials of the companies, however, reiterated their denials that a consolidation was imminent or that any application had been made to the government for permission to merge.

Banking quarters are watching closely the approach of June 15, at which time important matters of finance must be decided both here and abroad. The Treasury, for instance, needs around $1,000,000,000 for refunding and other purposes, and at the same time Great Britain and other foreign debtors of the United States must either pay, default or obtain a postponement on war loan payments. The Treasury's financing is expected to be in the form of short term obligations, but just what action the foreign contingent will take on their June installments is a matter of much conjecture.

Business news generally continued satisfactory, although there were some moderate let-downs in the recent feverish pace of scattered industries. Steel production apparently is maintaining its improvement, with operations at Cleveland reported substantially above those of last week. Freight car loadings appear to be holding up well.

WEATHER AIDS GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO, June 6.—New upturns in grain prices early today accompanied reports that wheat crops southwest and west were going from bad to worse because of destructive heat.

Nebraska advices said two or three more days of prevailing weather would completely ruin wheat. Opening ¼-¾ up, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started at ⅛ decline to ½ advance and subsequently gained all around.

After about a cent a bushel jump in values, the wheat market reacted owing to indications of cooler temperatures. The reaction took prices back to about even with yesterday's finish. There was relatively little pressure to sell, however, and commission houses were buyers on dips.

Corn and oats were inclined to drag on account of improved conditions for corn planting and because of liberal receipts of corn.

UPWARD MOVE IN TRADE STILL APPARENT

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, June 6.—On the whole, the business news of the week continued to be encouraging. Electrical power production gained, railway carloadings held their own, considering the season, and so did steel production activity.

There was evidence that a good many observers felt that the pace had become too rapid. The rise in commidity prices was checked, with grains, lard, cotton and silver a little reactionary.

Automobile production appears to be near its seasonal peak, and steel production seems likely to feel the effect of this soon. Already a little letdown in the Youngstown area is reported.

DOLLAR'S VALUE DROPS

But the upward movement is still apparent, and should be enough to keep activity somewhat better than seasonal in trend.

It now seems to me that an inflationary rise has got well started, and has gained such momentum that it will go further.

Some assert that no actual inflation has yet occurred, because bank credit has not expanded. I think that this idea overlooks the psychological element and the fact that the world is now convinced that the dollar has depreciated in value.

There may be no larger number of dollars, but certainly each dollar is worth less. That must be counted as one form of inflation.

Two questions arise: Are we going to have more inflation of this sort? Can it bring sustained business gains?

MORE INFLATION SEEN

It seems probable that further inflation will develop for the following reasons: The government's price-boosting program has not attained its objectives, notably in wheat.

The belief in the effectiveness of currency depreciation will be strengthened by the recent move. There will be a big howl for more, on any reaction, and wide inflationary powers are on tap. As prices rise, it will require more and more money to do business.

To some extent, the gain in business activity is real. For example, production in many lines had fallen to very low levels, and the depression psychology had caused much postponement of normal buying. The return of such buying has naturally warranted some increase in production.

The fear of all banks and the hoarding of money have ceased, and this has brought more normal buying.

SOME SPECULATIVE

We should remember, however, that some of the rise has been speculative or has represented buying in excess of actual requirements much of the existing inflation was rapidly discounted.

It is therefore reasonable to expect a reaction in business within some such period as two months, and this might be touched off sooner by any untoward political development. We should then be able to size up how much real underlying strength there is, and to see how far the government will go in using its inflationary powers.

Meanwhile, one should swim along with the tide, which will probably be rising.

Gulf Oil Orders 60 White Trucks

The Gulf Refining Company, Pittsburgh, has placed an order with White Motor Company, Cleveland, for 60 heavy and medium-duty trucks. The order will approximate $200,000, and is for immediate delivery.

Gulf's truck orders now total 242. Besides the White trucks, the Gulf order includes 152 Mack tank trucks, 20 Dodge tank trucks and 10 G. M. C. tank trucks.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, May 6.—The market was due ⅛ to ¼ pence lower. Opened ⅜ to ½ pence off, and at 12:15 p. m. was down ⅜ to ⅝.

Street Awaits Steel's Tonnage Statement Due Saturday

The Steel Corporations's tonnage report is due at noon on Saturday, but there is considerable hesitancy on the part of the usual commentators to attempt to make a forecast of the probable showing. An increase is generally expected, but because of the rapid rate at which output was stepped up, from around 25 per cent to approximately 40 per cent in the month, guessing is regarded as a hazardous pastime on this occasion. The expansion of 23,572 tons reported for April marked the first gain since October last year. In May, 1932, a contraction of 149,764 tons in the total of unfilled orders was reported.

Steel production in the Cleveland district jumped to 77 per cent of capacity today with 30 out of 34 open hearth furnaces glowing, it was reported by daily Metal Trade. The national rate is expected to reach 50 per cent by mid-week, the publication said in noting that demand is holding up at a remarkable rate. The number of employed was increased sharply.

Total United States wheat supplies in all positions on July 1, next, should be about 987,000,000 bushels, or 118,000,000 bushels less than a year ago. The June 1 average winter wheat forecast of the five private crop experts of the trade was for 357,000,000 bushels, or 105,000,000 bushels shy of last year's. The official government report for that date is due after market hours on June 9.

W. C. Teagle, president of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, told stockholders at the annual meeting at Newark that there has been a slight pick-up in deliveries of gasoline, although still below last year. "The decline in gasoline consumption," he said, "has not been at the rate that we have been expecting."

Decision of the Atchison board to reduce the dividend payment on its preferred stock gave the market a few nervous moments during the noon hour. The stock was selling above 78 when the news came out, but a very thin market developed with the spread between bid and offers quite wide, the next sale coming through at 69 where the stock was off 10 points net. The common broke several points.

Due to the fact that the period covered embraced the Memorial Day holiday, car loadings returns due next Saturday will probably show a slight dip from those of the previous week. But the shrinkage is expected to be very small considering the circumstances, and what is more important the aggregate will probably run very substantially ahead of last year. Loadings dipped abruptly in the corresponding week last year, while the trend this year has been well maintained.

ATCHISON CUTS PREFERRED

CHICAGO, June 6.—The Atchison and Santa Fe Railway declared a dividend of $1.50 on the preferred stock out of the "undivided net profits" for the year ending June 30, 1933, payable August 1 to record of June 30. Previously the company paid $2.50 semi-annually.

The company issued a statement saying:

"The general auditor furnished to directors an estimate of the 'undivided net profit' for the year ending June 30 of $3,986,391, an amount very slightly in excess of the sum

AUDACIOUS GIRL REVEALS SECRETS OF SOUTHERN SEAS

CHAPTER XVIII.

One day the deadly monotony of Kaewieng was stirred by a ripple of excitement. There was a new arrival on the Corola, when that little schooner chugged in from a trip to an expropriated island plantation.

It was Daphne, and she was coming to Kaewieng to be married. We knew, of course, that Daphne was eventually going to be married, because her big, good-tempered lover in our midst was mooning the days and lovely fragrant nights away. But they had not expected to be married before the new year, and this was September.

Daphne belonged to the islands. Her father had skippered a schooner for a quarter-century in Melanesian waters; he had traded in kanakas, pearl-shell, copra, pearls, and beche-de-mer, and had traded wisely, so that his wild young daughter would have a sizable dowry. She had grown up like a little amphibian, with no more fear of sharks and pukh-pukhs in that treacherous green water than the kanakas themselves. Her life had been spent between her father's New Britain plantation, his schooner, and brief, unhappily restricted periods with inhibited aunts in Brisbane.

By the time she was 19 her name had been linked with a dozen adventurers, ephemeral government servants, planters and other male wanderers who crossed her carefree path. But she had given never a serious thought to any of them—until she met Hank. As I say, he was big, good-looking, good-humored and possessive, and steadier than most. She had toppled head over heels in love with him, and he with her. Then the copra firm that he worked for transferred him to Kaewieng. If you are in love, and separated from the object of your desire, Kaewieng is a heartrending place to be. Its beauty is an affront.

PREPARE FOR WEDDING

They had become engaged, Hank doing himself proud with a large ring composed of a cluster of undeniably real, but minute, diamonds, imported specially on the Marsina. In Rabaul I had heard of Daphne, but she herself had been down in Sydney at the time buying a trousseau. And now, after visiting on a plantation, she was coming to New Ireland to relieve that restless Hank. She and her Mary were to take possession of his bungalow down the road from us, and he was transferred to a back room of his store.

Daphne came, with short hair the color of honey, eyes as blue as larkspur, and a joyous, 19-year-old heart. She was inclined to plumpness, which she deplored but couldn't remedy, and big Hank adored her. Nancy and I were at the bridge to greet her, and thereafter were friends. She talked pidgin like a kanaka and, best of all, she had energy to walk along the beach and out to a cave teethed with stalagmites and stalactites where the fathoms-deep water was cold enough to frost a cup.

So we planned for her wedding, sewed on her trousseau, and knew a rebirth of interest. As she was not a Catholic, the only alternative left for a church wedding was that of the missionary out at Ulu. He was the second most unpopular missioner in the territory.

EXCITEMENT PREVAILS

We decided it must be a bang-up wedding. Our resources were limited, but this bred ingenuity. There was a wedding feast such as the islands had rarely seen; and at this psychological time the ice-plant at the Chinese hotel was put into running order. The space in it that was rented out to colonists was originally intended for the purpose of keeping meat, so that pig and goat need not be eaten freshly killed; but the space was ultimately used almost exclusively for beer.

Therefore, second only in interest to the bride, was the fact that we were to have jelly desserts at her wedding feast. O, ye with jaded appetites, go out to obscure islands of the South Pacific and find what brightens life! The catering we gave over entirely to the Chinese proprietor of the hotel.

The wedding reception was to be at the Star bungalow. The kanaka servants were beside themselves with excitement, because "big fella singsing belong white fella mastah 'e come up." For a week before the wedding day they were cutting palm fronds for decorations. Magnificent fronds, ceiling-high, arched doorways and framed the veranda; hibiscus, poinciana, bougainvillea, and frangipani were strung in garlands everywhere. Sprays of white orchids drooped from suspended vases; Chinese lanterns gave a carnival air. Daphne, strangely grave for the first time in her life, lounged around, keeping out of our busy way.

And we had reinforcements to our ranks, for the plantation manager and his wife from the island of Lemus, and the family from Tsoi, had come by schooner to Kaewieng, lending eager hands to the biggest local event in many a languorous day.

PECULIAR WEDDING BELL

We must have a wedding bell. It was indispensable, but neither Chinatown nor the European trade-stores offered any solution. Maskee! Weren't there a large lampshade and uncounted trees of frangipani? So we did it. We sent a cohort of monkeys (young boys) out to gather frangipani blossoms by the basketfuls. We padded the lampshade with cotton and strung unending ropes of white- and gold flowers, winding these spirally about the embryo wedding bell, until the marvel was achieved.

I doubt that ever a wedding feast was prepared under fairer auspices. It was nearing the end of the gentle sou-east monsoons, and if anywhere there is a physical paradise it is among the jade-pillowed islands of Melanesia. Dreamy sweetness of blossoms crept up to us, the sunbeams danced a mad ballet betwen the atolls, and of nights a waxing moon fared forth over the horizon.

FEAST READY

My job had been the typing of the invitations. They were on deceptively folded tablet paper, were worded with extreme formality, and were dispatched even to far plantations by kanaka messenger. Three or four went far down the coast by outrigger canoes.

The wedding-feast was set on the rear veranda, where long tables had been constructed. High piles of cold roast cockeroo, plates of sausage rolls in vol-au-vent, heaps of salted galip nuts, tasting like rarely delicate almonds, rice cakes, and bowls of macedoine fruit. This last was the precious jelly dessert. It was, alas, placed on view all too soon, for by the time we were ready to luxuriate in it, it was reduced to a runny lake of fruit. And the wedding-cakes! Not one but a dozen, white-frosted and decorated lavishly with purple bougainvillea blossom. The Chinese caterer, let loose, had done a noble job.

Cases of champagne stood about, ready for a royal celebration.

The afternoon closed. It was time to robe the bride. Yards of tulle that she had brought from Sydney we had sewed together for a filmy veil. Her frock was white chiffon embroidered in gold threads. From a cumquat tree we gathered some sprays of waxy white blossoms, and Nance fitted the tulle veil closely about the yellow head. We made a wreath of the blossoms, and put a spray of white orchids in her arms, and then stood back to look with satisfaction at our handiwork. In the light of two oil-lamps stood a lovely girl smilingly reflected in the long mirror—a white-and-gold bride, with sunspun hair escaping from a misty cap. She would soon be caught in this web of the tropics, bound irrevocably, never to escape! Ah well!

GO TO CHURCH

Time to go to Ulu, to the church. There were three motor cars in Kaewieng; half a dozen of us piled into the first, and the second also took a full cargo. The cars were to make trips back and forth until the 40-odd persons were transported to the ceremony. The bride and Nance, who attended her, and the elderly planter from 20 miles down the Boluminski road, who was to give her away, were to be the last.

We arrived at the mission church at Ulu. It was a small frame building with a dirt floor, which had been strewn for the occasion with palm fronds. Hurricane lamps swung against the wall, gave a dim light; at the far end was an improvised altar where two candles flickered in bottle-necks. A white tissue-paper bell hung over the altar. A group of 30 half-naked kanakas stood in a corner—the choir! With us arrived the groom; and upon our arrival a tropical storm broke—one of those sudden deluging downpours that come without warning, making travel of any sort impossible.

MINNESINGER OF THE THIRTEENTH CENTURY

Harmony in music was attempted about 900 A. D., but until 1400 A. D. there was little headway. Church songs reached high development in Palestrina's (1525-1594) masses. (World's History).

BACH, THE FATHER OF MODERN MUSIC, WITH HIS FAMILY

Johann Sebastian Bach (1685-1750), descendant of musicians, presided over a household in which music was a familiar language. For the clavichord he wrote in the scale which we use today. His works—fugues, motets, cantatas, passions, oratorios, concertos, sonatas and suites—fill 60 volumes. In a list of geniuses Bach is classed with Euripides, Sophocles, Shakespeare, Milton, da Vinci, Michelangelo and Goethe. (World's History, Renaissance).

BEETHOVEN (1770-1827) AT MOZART'S (1756-1791) HOME

Johann Mozart, considered by some the most perfect musician, was a virtuoso and composer at 4. He created the art song, with the music changing from verse to verse for greater expressiveness. He composed 49 symphonies and a series of operas, including Magic Flute, Marriage of Figaro. Ludwig von Beethoven, when deaf in his later years, could still hear in his mind the music he wrote. He combined the classic mould with delicacy, humor, pathos, nobility. His greatest creations are the nine Symphonies. (World's History).

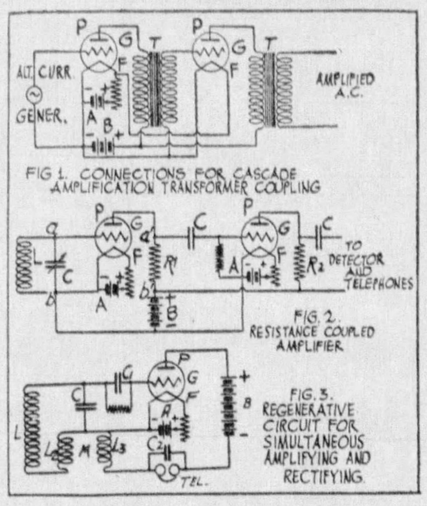
ELECTRON TUBE AS AMPLIFIER



In a three-electrode electron tube, an increase in voltage of the grid-circuit causes a greater increase of the plate current than an increase of the plate voltage would have caused. Example: If the voltage of the grid-circuit were increased by one volt, the intensity of the plate current would increase 0.8 amp.; if the voltage of the plate current were boosted by one volt, the intensity would increase only 0.1 amp. The raio 0.8/0.1=8 (in this example) is the amplification coefficient of the tube. Two electron tubes, when the plate of the first is connected with the grid of the second, can be used for amplifying an alternating current that is connected to the grid of the first tube. The coupling of the tubes can be inductive (by transformers) or by resistances; by connecting three or more tubes in a similar way, great amplifications, limited only by the also magnified disturbances, can be made. Fig. 1 shows the inductive, Fig. 2 the resistance coupling of amplifier tubes: P, plate; G, grid; F, filament; A and B, batteries; T, transformer; L, L2, L3, inductance coils; R1, R2 resistances; C, condenser. The aerial inductively coupled with L is not shown. Fig. 3 represents a "regenerative" circuit where the oscillations in the plate circuit are transferred back to the grid by the inductive coupling of the two circuits at M. This boosts the grid oscillations, resulting in an amplified plate current, which is also rectified in as much as the tube acts simultaneously as a detector. The result is a much greater telephone current and stronger sound than would have been obtained from the original oscillations without "regeneration." (U. S. Signal Corps: Radio Communication).

TOAD STOOLS (Science)

Above is the "Death Cup" (Amanita phalloides), below another deadly fungus (the amanita muscaria). Mushrooms are the reproductive tissues of a higher form of fungi. A, pileus; B, stipe; C, gills; D, veil; E, volva (most poisonous part). Poisonous mushrooms are called toad stools. No rules can be relied upon to recognize edible species. The mushroom has little food value because it is composed mostly of water. (Eikenberry and Waldron: Educational Biology).

We Harness Malaria

Malarial cure for other diseases has been on the medical books for years. Discovered by a European doctor in West Indies.

Idea is that red hot malaria germ will bang the chops off any cooler microbe. Runs right through them like a Southern California fullback.

Although just released as a new discovery we happen to know the U. S. Navy has been using it for some time elapsed.

Any time you get something wrong with you the government doctors would place a federal moskeeter on your neck with full powers plenipotentiary. When the skeeter sat down and started pushing you got your army issue of malaria.

After you got better there was nothing left to do but cure the malaria. And everybody knows that whisky and quinine is the caper for that.

The best kind of malaria serum is tapped from the hot and cold veins of our Marines in Manila. If a husky corporal got to snorting and shaking they put him on the boat for Washington and the experimental depot.

He received no whisky and no quinine on the trip. The result was that by the time he got through the Suez Canal he was doing a pretty good natural rhumba. The more he pleaded for medical supplies the less he got.

He just shook and shimmied himself across the Atlantic and up the Potomac. Then the doctors grabbed him and jabbed him for serum. To a doctor that was just like striking oil.

If the serum was a success the poor old quivery corporal was right in line for his whisky and malaria. They soon cured him up. But he had to start his military career at the bottom again for he had usually shaken his meritorious chevrons off.

It was tough. But that is all in the line of duty and a few detours.

We just cite this case to let you know that the Navy and The Bug are always interested in new discoveries connected with the old recipes of whisky and quinine.

Pennsylvania Recognized

There Is Much That Is Praiseworthy in the Appointment of Carroll Miller to the I. C. C.

Carroll Miller, of Pittsburgh, who has just been appointed to the Interstate Commerce Commission, is a brother-in-law of Joseph F. Guffey, who has been generally recognized as President Roosevelt's chief lieutenant in Pennsylvania.

That suggests that the job was given Miller in payment of a political debt, and because of his relationship to Guffey, rather than because of his merits.

It happens, however, that Miller has excellent qualifications for the position. A graduate of the Stevens Institute of Technology, he has served as a consulting engineer on important public utility problems not only in the United States but also in European and Asiatic countries. Moreover, he has a liberal and progressive viewpoint.

Pennsylvania, the second state in population, has never before had representation on the Interstate Commerce Commission. That may be one of the reasons why Pennsylvania has fared badly in the Lake Cargo coal decisions and other rate cases in which competition between Pennsylvania shippers and those in other parts of the country was involved.

If the Senate confirms the appointment, as it probably will, we shall stand a better chance hereafter of having Pennsylvania's side of rate controversies considered.

Favoritism to Pennsylvania is not to be expected, of course—only justice. Many authorities on rate matters say we have not even received justice heretofore.

Utility Probe Vetoed

While the Ending of the Inquiry is Disappointing, Gov. Pinchot Had Good Reason for His Action.

The people of Pennsylvania have been supremely interested in getting a square deal from the public utilities. They have been interested in the charge that the utilities corrupted members of the Public Service Commission, and in the charge that they "wrote up" their capitalization in order to charge exorbitant rates while appearing to receive only a modest return on their investment.

Consequently the demand for the Senate investigation of the public utilities was strong and widespread.

Gov. Pinchot, too, elected, as he was, on a platform calling for better treatment of the people by the utilities, unquestionably was earnestly in favor of such an investigation.

We cannot choose but believe him, therefore, when he says, in vetoing the $100,000 appropriation for continuation of the inquiry that the investigation is a fake, and that he does not care to see the people's money wasted on it.

There is ample corroboration for Pinchot's view of the matter in the history of the investigation up to this time. Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County, the chairman, has shown himself excessively friendly to the utilities. Oliver K. Eaton, of Pittsburgh, felt compelled to resign as the committee's attorney because of his conviction that it had no intention of going to the bottom of the charges.

The fiasco is disappointing; but it is better to postpone the investigation until a more satisfactory investigating committee can be procured.

A New Juvenile Court

The Politicians Should Let the Authorities on Social Service Name the Judge.

The chief reason why our courts come in for criticism is because the judges, first and foremost, are politicians, and are placed on the bench for selfish political reasons.

The Legislature has enacted and Gov. Gifford Pinchot has approved a bill creating a new judicial position in Allegheny County—judge of Juvenile Court. The judge will be elected in November.

This place, probably more than any other on the bench, calls for special training, special sympathies, special abilities. It would be outrageous if the place should be given to someone without these particular qualifications, as a reward for political services.

If the professional politicians—the Coyne machine, and the Pinchot crowd, and the Democrats—have any regard for civic decency, they will not throw this new job into the cockpit of selfish, partisan politics, but will let the recognized authorities on social service get together and name the new judge.

Sunday Concerts Win

But It Is Regrettable That the Governor Will Not Permit Sunday Fishing.

Most of the citizens will hail with satisfaction the action of Gov. Gifford Pinchot in signing a bill which permits Sunday concerts to be given subject to certain restrictions.

It is to be hoped that musicians' organizations will promptly take advantage of the new law and arrange to furnish good music to relieve the tedium of Pennsylvania's blue Sundays.

Gov. Pinchot has unfortunately vetoed a bill which would have paved the way for Sunday fishing. The reason advanced for the veto is that the traditions of the state are opposed to Sunday fishing. That is no reason at all.

Sunday fishing is no more harmful than Sunday concerts.

Jobs for Graduates

There Is Encouragement in the News That Employers Are Again Asking for the Services of Students.

One of the most encouraging things in the local economic situation is the news that employers are once more asking for the services of students about to graduate from the colleges.

Miss Grace Merrill, of the employment bureau at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, says:

"Employment is better. Six weeks ago there were no calls for students to fill jobs. Today we are getting many."

It is worthy of note, also, that 700 men who have been idle returned to work yesterday at one of the Creighton plants of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, while 300 others were added to the payroll of the Penn Iron and Steel Company.

There are still some dark spots in the local business map, but cheerfulness is in order.

Wake Up, Uncle Sam!

Let a small boy get his hands on a knife and he'll whittle.

Permit a pacifist to whittle away as an "Economist" and he will undermine the national defenses.

And unless stopped in time, the national security is menaced.

In the service branches, the United States has retrenched to the danger point and when retrenchment menaces the national safety, it ceases to be economy.

With the world in its turbulent state today, 16 nations—from France with total organized forces of 6,942,559 men down to Portugal with 429,739 men and including Italy, Soviet Russia, China, Spain, Japan, Poland, Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia, Jugoslavia, Sweden, Great Britain, Switzerland, Belgium and Greece—maintain armies larger than the United States.

Congressional common sense should call a halt on the FALSE ECONOMY of the pacifists.

WOMAN'S GARDEN OF REVERSES

The awnings are up, the screens are in,
The lattice is painted green—
The vines are trimmed, the bulbs set out,
The windows are washed and clean.

The glider's on the porch, at last!
And weeded, each flower-bed.
The place looks, OH, so "restful"—but Migosh! I'M nearly DEAD!

A girl has to go almost as far out of her way in order to make a man "pursue" her, these days, as Japan has to go to "defend" herself from China.

A man fancies he's a philanthropist when he goes about making love to every girl he thinks won't take him seriously; but, in reality, he's a fatalist—because that's how most men got to the altar.

Nobody can eat more than a fat man on a reducing diet, when he's invited out to dinner and giving himself a sort of special dispensation.

A man has less leisure than a woman because he spends half his time telling a woman all the wonderful things he's going to do—and the other half explaining why he didn't do them.

At this time of year a man can't decide whether the inventor of the lawnmower was a great genius or just one of those interfering busybodies who are always thinking up something to make life harder.

It's difficult for a girl to decide which is more exasperating—the man who takes her kisses as a matter of course, or the man who almost, but never quite, takes them.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

The Price of Happiness

What would you pay for happiness,
Could any price be set?
What would you pay
To keep away
Foreboding and regret?

The fee men give for happiness
Is never twice the same;
One barters youth
And pride, in truth,
While one gives gold and fame.

Be sure the cost of happiness
Can never be too great;
Though ease and pride
Must be denied,
Choose still the heart elate!

For this rare gem of happiness
Is worth all life demands;
Pay toil, pay gold,
But, young or old,
Clutch gladness in your hands!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 6.—No man at two different periods of life so acquired two directly antithetical reputations as Bob Davis. As Robert H. Davis he was for years a magazine editor rarely grooving out of his routine — a worn path from his editorial desk to his apartment.

An editor, a discoverer of writers, he rarely wrote a line. About nine years ago he became Bob Davis, globe trotter, and in that time has written nine books and hundreds of newspaper columns. At the moment he is off for a long caprice in far away Iceland.

Born in a Nebraska whistle stop, the son of a minister, his early life was spent in Carson City. It was there he piloted Bob Fitzsimmons and gave him the nick-name "Ruby Robert." As an amateur photographer, his collection of snapshots of celebrities will some day go to the Metropolitan.

At 64, he is a twitch of enthusiasms, a raconteur par excellence with the impish expression of hankering for a tryst with the gang behind the barn. The other evening I asked where was the most interesting place he had ever been. "The most interesting place is where I am," he said.

Bob Davis was telling of a wiry Celt sidling up to Jim Corbett, in the first flush of his championship, in one of the New York bars. He wanted to know whatever became of this person and that out in San Francisco. His queries became so persistent that when his back was turned someone dumped an entire bottle of fiery tobasco in his beer. He downed it. While everybody looking on, beading in perspiration, expected him to burst into flame, he wiped his hand across his mouth and inquired: "Jim, whatever became of Nonpareil Jack Dempsey?

Sax Rohmer and P. G. Wodehouse were fellow clerks, at two pounds a week, in a London counting house after their graduation from college. They were dismissed the same day for using up the bank's expensive embossed stationery for fiction stories. Today they are the two biggest depositors in the same institution. Lots of fun, that kind of a joke.

Will Rogers attended an uppity luncheon at which the piece de resistance was Eggs Florentine. Rogers gazed contemplatively and finally forking up its rich crust of spinach and creamy yellow goo that suggested a gorgeous Italian sunset, nudged Amon Carter and whispered: "Don't say anything it's eggs."

The late Francis Patrick Murphy was one of New York's most engaging after dinner speakers. With narrowed eye and lifted finger, he could sweep an audience into tears or laughter at will. Although the world thought his efforts extemporaneous, he confessed to intimates he rehearsed every speech with gestures repeatedly before a full-length mirror in lieu of delivering it in public.

Shortly before his passing, Mr Murphy received a scrawled post card from an old nestor in the Maine woods he had known many years. It read: "I'm coming down to New York shortly for a capital operation. I'm going to have about five pounds of dried maple syrup cut out of my whiskers."

There's a fool yarn Squire Earl Mauck used to tell that starts off along a lonely road in the West Virginia hills. Suddenly there darted out of the roadside bushes a bewhiskered veteran, flapping his arms and screaming: "Catch me, I'm rattlesnake bit!"

Height-of-propriety-note: Kendal Banning dropped into the Army and Navy Club in Washington the other day and on the small table reserved for the funny magazines found Judge, Life, Punch—and the Congressional Record.

Ogden Mills, newspaper publisher, is the last surviving collarist—at least visible on the sartorial horizon—to wear the 1900 model, 3-inch turn over with rounded points.

* * *

And a head copy boy in an editorial room, glancing at a rather fuzzy-wuzzy new reporter on the staff, observed: "He looks to me like a Shubert road show of Heywood Broun!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

She writes—
(And she's plenty mad)—
"Why do you
"Criticize women?
"Why don't women
"Stand by women?"

WHY SHOULD WOMEN
STAND BY WOMEN?
WHY SHOULDN'T THEY, INSTEAD,
STAND BY THE WHOLE HUMAN RACE?

Why should women
Make a racket of femaleness?
What's a female, anyway?
Just another person.
No essential difference
Between her mind
And a man's mind.
Background different?
Yes, it was once;
But even that's
The same now.
Man world—woman world—
They're all of a piece
In 1933.
THEN WHY SHOULD WOMEN MAKE 'A RACKET OF FEMALENESS?

Why should women
Insist on Being Different?
Why should they act
As if they were
A race apart from men?
Maybe when women
Lived in harems
There was some excuse
For such ganging-up;
But there's no excuse
In this 20th century,
When women claim "equality."

Why should women
Demand 20th century
Emancipation
And opportunity,
Yet still hang on
To their tenth century
Sentimentality and stupidity,
Suspicion and peevishness?

If a woman decides
To be a man's equal,
To vote like men,
And work like men,
And have all the freedom
And perquisites of men,
Why should she also
Insist on Going Female,
And claim a lot of Special exemptions
And fancy considerations
Which no man could claim?

Either a woman's A Regular Egg
Or she's a
What-have-you.
If she's regular,
Let her act regular,
And think regular,
And take regular chances;
And if she isn't regular,
Let her take
The consequences
On the chin,
Like a man.

Why should women
Stand by women?
Why should I
Stand by you
Just because
You're a woman?
Why should you
Stand by me
Because I'm a woman?
It's what we mean
As human beings
That counts—
Not the fact
That we're females.
It's the quality
Of our service,
Not the name
Of our sex,
That gives us a rating.

This idea of women
Standing by women
Is the bunk;
It has done women
More harm
Than the meanest male
Ever did them;
It is still
Their greatest handicap.
I don't want anyone
To stand by me
Because I'm a woman.
I've asked for Equality with men.
And I want equality—
An even break—
That's all.
If I can't make good
As a regular human being,
Then any pipsqueak
Is hereby invited
To bawl me out—
And they usually do!

And as for Protecting me,
Coddling me,
Or giving me
Free passes because
I'm a Dear Little Woman—
JUST TRY AND DO IT.
YOU'LL BE SURPRISED.

Wise to resolve, and patient to perform.

Night is a good herdsman; she brings all creatures home.

The hardest job of all is trying to look busy when you're not.

Liberty when it begins to take root, is a plant of rapid growth.

The Human Side of the News

The Drama of the Senate Inquiry Into the House of Morgan—Contrast Between Pecora and Morgan—Nobody Will Go to Jail.

By EDWIN C. HILL

TREMENDOUS drama is being enacted in a great, high-ceilinged, white-marble-walled room of the magnificent office building in Washington where Senators of the United States serve their country when they are not too busy looking out for themselves and their constituents. Theodore Roosevelt once said:

"Congressmen must be worth what they are paid because they have so much to do. They must look out for themselves, then for their districts, then for their states and finally for their country and God, if and when."

If the great Teddy were alive and looking on today he would snap his teeth together with an emphatic addition to that list as far as some Congressmen were concerned. He would insert the word "Morgan" just after "country" and before "God."

THE blazing drama of the Senate inquiry into the affairs and operations of the House of Morgan lies in the stark fact that for the first time in its history, for the first time in three generations—one might even say four generations—of the Morgan family, the most secret and private records and dealings of that imperial clan are dragged into the glaring light and thrown across page one of the newspapers in huge headlines.

The third grand duke of the hereditary line is summoned from his palace by the curt command of the son of a Sicilian peasant. The great Pierpont Morgan, comparable only to Florence's Lorenzo the Magnificent, is dragged to court and set down among the common people.

At a stroke the whole tradition of his privacy is smashed. Newspaper and newsreel photographers swarm like flies around the sugar-bowl to snap every gesture and posture of the victim delivered into their hands with the advice and consent of the United States Senate. Reporters saunter carelessly up to the Olympian Morgan to ask him what he had for breakfast. And a circus agent walks in and dumps a tittering midget in his lap!

THE analogy between Morgan the Magnificent and Lorenzo the Magnificent has striking likeness. Both houses dealt in money and ruled by the power of gold. The Morgans, like the Medicis, have been collectors, patrons and connoiseurs of art. Both exerted vast influence upon the government of their countries. Lorenzo had his Macchiavelli and his Savaranola. For the reigning Morgan the subtle and amazingly able George Whitney plays the part of Macchiavelli, and of course none other than Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, can be cast in the role of the fiery reformer and inquisitor who brought down the House of Medici.

WHAT we are witnessing in the daily unfolding drama of the Morgan hearing is the old, old conflict between Bourbonism and Liberalism. Pecora is effective because he BELIEVES what he says when he attributes despotism and sinfulness to the House of Morgan, precisely as Savaranola burned with the conviction that the House of Medici was a peril to the Florentine state and people.

George Whitney is impressive because he BELIEVES what he says in defense of the theories and practices of the House of Morgan.

Each is the product not only of generations of thought and experience, but of thousands of years of mental habit. In the French revolution J. Pierpont Morgan would have been the kindly, likeable Louis the Sixteenth. Pecora, of course, would have been Danton, or possibly Robespierre. George Whitney has, at least, the mental equipment of Talleyrand, inventor of the phrase that conversation was for the purpose of concealing thought.

THE very heart of the drama is the congenital hatred of Pecora for the aristocratic principle which Morgan typifies. It crops out in almost every question he wields like a lashing whip. Even within the measured and courteous forms of legality, Pecora, son of the soil and the common people and inheritor of a thousand years of resentment of oppression, cannot for the life of him refrain from casting over every act and deed of Morgan a mantle of deliberate wickedness. For Pecora the principle is, "the king can do no right."

Whitney, scion of aristocracy, wealth and culture, cannot for the life of him refrain altogether from edging his answers with contempt for all that Pecora stands for—the upstart peasant daring to stand uncovered in the presence of his annointed master.

THE truth, of course, lies somewhere in between. Compared to many bankers, if not most, the House of Morgan has been a consistory of angels. It has displayed the usual and historic attributes of benevolent dynasties and ruling houses—intense loyalty to friends, intense dislike for enemies, enormous ability and a great deal of valuable constructive force; but along with all that, an aloof and self-sanctified attitude toward government and law.

Nobody will go to jail as a result of this savage duel between Pecora and Whitney, as the jovial and engaging Morgan sits by, turning upon Pecora a face lined by doubt and puzzlement and upon the handsome and quick-witted Whitney a gaze of sheer admiration. Nobody will go to jail, but there will be a vast and lasting change in the law—the law which gives such imperial power to a private banking house of 20 men, and which permits rich men (not necessarily any of the Morgans) to sidestep their income taxes while poor John Doe sweats to find income tax money while he keeps a roof over his head . . . the drama of the Morgan hearing is the most arresting show that has been put on in this country for many a year.

AN 'ARGUMENT'

By Winifred Black

"We had an argument," said the prisoner at the bar, "and I just shot him, that's all—I didn't mean to hurt him much, but we got to arguing, so I just shot him."

"Quite so," said the judge, "well, I'll just send you to prison to think over that argument till the patient decides whether to get well or to die."

"Thank you, your honor," said the prisoner, and for the time being the case was closed.

"Argument"—how many people do you know who really know what the word argument means?

I was always taught to believe that an argument was a calm, logical, fair-minded discussion. Not a quarrel or anything like a quarrel.

If you lose your temper in an argument you lose your case, and your argument is not an argument at all, but a fight.

What's the use of words if we're going to mix them up and not know what they really mean?

I heard a woman say the other day, that she loved roses, but she liked lilies best.

"Lilies aren't as beautiful as roses," said the woman, "but their odor is so delicious—I can't help loving them best for that."

Now, if the good woman had said fragrance or perfume—but she didn't, she said odor. And to my mind when you say odor, you almost say stench or something worse.

Now what's the difference between a stench and a smell?

A very great difference, indeed.

You get a smell from the bread baking in a good home kitchen—but if you want a stench you must step around to the alley.

"What huge eyes she has!" said a perfect darling of a girl to a regular pet of a girl the other day.

What a thing to say about a pair of lovely eyes.

Eyes may be large, they may be soft, they may be limpid, they may be roguish, they may be mischievous, they may be laughing, they may be liquid, they may be brilliant, they may be coaxing, they may be challenging, they may be daring, they may be impish, they may be languid, they may be searching, they may be big, but huge—not unless the owner of them is some unfortunate freak of nature, who sits on a platform in a side show, and takes 10 cents for removing her mask.

It's such a good, plain, honest bitter, strong, meaningful, direct sweet, wholesome language, this English of ours. Can't we do something to keep it from becoming a hopeless muddle of meaningless syllables?
